Melville's Short Fiction, 1853-1856 William B. Dillingham,2008 This study treats comprehensively the sixteen short works of fiction that Herman Melville wrote between 1853 and 1856 most of which were published in Harper s and Putnam s magazines Concentrating on the writer s two basic motivations for writing as he did in these stories Dillingham argues that Melville created a surface of almost inane congeniality in many of the works an illusion of vapidty that camouflages a profundity often missed by his readers He sought to to hide disturbing themes because the magazines for which he was writing would almost certainly have rejected his attempts to be more direct Dillingham s method is not however confined to a reading of the texts Melville s stories contain so many allusions to the contemporary scene that they constitute in themselves a cultural study An important contribution of Melville s Short Fiction is its discussion of these allusions Finally Dillingham examines the relationship between the short fiction and Melville s own life Much of the writer s frustration and struggle is concealed in these early works Melville s friendship with Hawthorne for example an intense and yet in some ways disappointing relationship for both men is explored as an important influence on several of the stories
