

Earth Day

Earth Day was one of the biggest civil events in the planet. In April 21, Earth Day is about raising for the Earth and raising awareness about how to do so. People do more, this holiday isn't just a day. It's a movement! People come together to do activities like picking up litter and planting trees.

The first Earth Day was celebrated in 1970. It was organized by Senator James Earl Ray, who worked with an activist named Denis Hayes, who organized various events. The first Earth Day was an important event in history. In fact, the first Earth Day was the first time that 20 million Americans participated in demonstrations to raise awareness of the impact of industrial development.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency was created at the end of 1970, inspired by Earth Day. The day also led to new environmental laws like the National Environmental Education Act, the Occupational Safety and Health Act, and the Clean Air Act. Two years later, the Clean Water Act was passed.

The 50th anniversary of Earth Day was in 2020, and the movement is still going strong. People continue to participate by recycling, planting trees, picking up trash, or spreading the word on how to help the Earth.
