Rabkin, 1998-10 In this unique filmography Leslie Rabkin delves deeply into film s unconscious producing a valuable reference text concerned with the history of film and its representation of therapy and mental illness The Celluloid Couch is arranged by decade with the exception of the earliest period The Silent Era from the very beginnings of film to 1920 Each period contains a thoughtful introduction that highlights important films and discusses the intersection of film with history and psychology Rabkin s overview lays bare patterns in film's representation of mental illness and therapy and inquires how contemporary stereotypes of psychiatric patients and institutions have been formed from film. Textual examples in the introduction are drawn from magazines and newspapers as well as numerous readings of particularly important films refracted through the lens of a psychologist. The alphabetical entries are compact and inclusive, containing main titles as well as foreign listings and detailed information such as cast, length, director, producer, and a brief synopsis of the film's plot and discussion of the forms of therapy depicted and utilized in the film. An efficient resource for the student of film psychology or mass culture. The Celluloid Couch makes the huge number of popular films that portray mental illness and therapy accessible. By Strength, We Are Still Here Crystal Gail Fraser, 2024-12-13 The first comprehensive study of Indian residential schools in the North. In this ground-breaking book, Crystal Gail Fraser draws on Dinjii Zhuh Gwich in concepts of individual and collective strength to illuminate student experiences in northern residential schools, revealing the many ways Indigenous communities resisted the institutionalization of their children. After 1945, federal bureaucrats and politicians increasingly sought to assimilate Indigenous northerners who had remained comparatively outside of their control into broader Canadian society through policies that were designed to destroy Indigenous ways of life. Foremost among these was an aggressive new schooling policy that mandated the construction of Grollier and Stringer Halls, massive residential schools that opened in Inuvik in 1959, eleven years after a special joint committee of the House of Commons and the Senate recommended that all residential schools in Canada be closed. By Strength We Are Still Here shares the lived experiences of Indigenous northerners from 1959 until 1982, when the territorial government published a comprehensive plan for educational reform. Led by survivor testimony, Fraser shows the roles both students and their families played in disrupting state agendas, including questioning and changing the system to protect their cultures and communities. Centring the expertise of Knowledge Keepers, By Strength We Are Still Here makes a crucial contribution to Indigenous research methodologies and to understandings of Canadian and Indigenous histories during the second half of the twentieth century. New Testament Foundations Ralph P. Martin, Carl N. Toney, 2018-09-12 Drawing upon over fifty years of scholarly experience, one of the most industrious contemporary scholars, this work, which was first published in 1975, has been revised, updated, and expanded to offer a fresh, in-depth introduction to the New Testament for today's students. Students will be immersed into the world of the first century, learning about both Greco-Roman and Jewish backgrounds. While discussing the fundamental questions surrounding the content of each book, including its authorship, audience, and message, this work also engages with the wider historical critical discussion, helping students navigate the wider world of modern New Testament scholarship. Colonial and Postcolonial Africa Rosina Beckman, 2016-12-14 The Strikers of Coachella Christian O. Paiz, 2022-12-06 The past decades have borne witness to the United Farm Workers' (UFW) tenacious hold on the country's imagination. Since 2008, the UFW has lent its rallying cry to a presidential campaign and been the subject of no less than nine books, two documentaries, and one motion picture. Yet the full story of the women men and children who powered this social movement has not yet been told Based on more than 200 hours of original oral history interviews conducted with Coachella Valley residents who participated in the UFW and Chicano movements as well as previously unused oral history collections of Filipino farm workers bracero workers and UFW volunteers throughout the United States this stirring history spans from the 1960s and 1970s through the union's decline in the early 1980s Christian O Paiz refocuses attention on the struggle inherent in organizing a particularly vulnerable labor force especially during a period that saw the hollowing out of virtually all of the country's most powerful labor unions He emphasizes that telling this history requires us to wrestle with the radical contingency of rank and file agency an agency that often overflowed the boundaries of individual intentions By drawing on the voices of ordinary farmworkers and volunteers Paiz reveals that the sometimes heroic sometimes tragic story of the UFW movement is less about individual leaders and more the result of a collision between the larger anti union currents of the era and the aspirations of the rank and file

Berkeley at War : The 1960s W.J. Rorabaugh Professor of History University of Washington,1989-05-04 Berkeley California was the bellwether of the political social and cultural upheaval that made the 1960s a unique period of American history a time when the top down methods of a conservative establishment collided head on with the bottom up grass roots ethos of the civil rights movement and an increasingly well educated and individualistic middle class W J Rorabaugh who attended the graduate school of the University of California at Berkeley in the early 1970s presents a lively and informative account of the events that overtook and changed forever what had once been a quiet conservative white suburb The rise of the Free Speech Movement which gave a voice to disfranchised students the growth and increasing militance of a black community struggling to end segregation the emergence of radicalism and the anti war movement the blossoming of hippie culture with its scorn for materialism and enthusiasm for experimentation with everything from sex and drugs to Eastern philosophies the beginnings of modern day feminism and environmentalism and how all of these coalesced in the explosive conflict over People's Park are traced in a meticulously researched and authoritative narrative At issue was the question of power and the struggle between the establishment and the powerless led to developments that the advocates of a freer society could scarcely have foreseen Ronald Reagan elected governor of California in reaction to the events at Berkeley and Edwin H Meese III who battled against the student movement and People's Park rose to national power in the 1980s without however gaining any popularity in Berkeley where Walter Mondale won 83 percent of the vote in 1984 An invaluable account of its time and place this book anchors the 60s in American history both before and since that colorful decade Writers
