Fabled Shore Rose Macaulay, 1959 Fabled Shore; From the Pyrenees to Portugal Rose Macaulay (Dame), 1959

Fabled Shore; From the Pyrenees to Portugal Rose Macaulay (Dame), 1959 Fabled Shore - From the Pyrenees to Portugal Rose Macaulay, 2011-12-05 A Greek mariner from Marseilles compiled in the sixth century B C a topographical sailing book of his voyage from the Lands of Tin in the northern seas down the western coast of Portugal and round the Sacred Cape and so along the southern coast of the Iberian peninsula through the Pillars and along the Mediterranean coast to Marseilles his home The later part of this sailing book from the Tartessos region near Cadiz to Marseilles had great detail describing each bay each cape each port for the benefit of those Greek merchant mariners who adventured and trafficked down that far and fabulous coast to the Pillars of Hercules and beyond these into the dark and questionable Atlantic where the silver mountains stood back from the Tartessian shore From this sailing log or rather from some later Greek version of it the late Roman poet Rufus Festus Avienus made towards the end of the fourth century A D the poem that he called Ora Maritima dull and prosy verse enough but fascinating material to those making part of the same journey every line has interest And from Avienus I had thought to borrow the title of this travel book But it did not go down well with my publishers for the booksellers believed that their clients would take it for a girl's name and when they came to read the book be profoundly disappointed and return it So I renounced Ora Maritima for a title less deceiving Fabled Shore is a true description of this long strange coast and its haunted hinterland to which Homer sent Odysseus voyaging where in the regions about Tartessos dark Tartarus was placed and the Elysian plains the abode of the blest at the ends of the earth where life is easiest No snow is there nor great storm nor ever any rain but always Oceanus sends forth the breezes of clear blowing Zephyrus That as Strabo observed is obviously Iberia As to the Islands of the Blest they lie opposite Cadiz And it was in the Cadiz region too that Herakles killed Geryon and drove away his cattle Herakles indeed was the hero of all this shore he sought the Hesperides and their golden apples off it and he it was who clove in two the bridge of land that joined Africa to Spain so that to this day its two halves are called the Pillars of Hercules Indeed most Greek legends were at one time placed in that far western land that stretched mysterious and unknown beyond the Pillars and the familiar Mediterranean along the fabulous Outer Ocean to the Sacred Cape Sites of Exchange, 2006-01-01 Crossing borders both physically and imaginatively is part of our nomadic postmodern identity but transcultural and transnational exchanges have also played a major role in the centuries long processes of hybridisation that helped to fashion the vast geographic political and imaginative container of diversity we call Europe This volume gathers together the work of scholars from several European countries in an attempt to encourage a collective reflection upon historical and often mythical locations and landscapes as well as upon the thresholds and faultlines that unite or separate them The issues the volume tackles are delicate and complex for the encounter of differences engenders both curiosity and suspicion and there is no easy way to create a new synthesis

while respecting and promoting diversity However since Europe is inevitably a cultural and political entity in the making Europeans should embrace the great narrative of a utopian project uniting their efforts to work towards a civilisation that is grounded on plurality and openness

Art in Spain and Portugal from the Romans to the Early Middle Ages Rose Walker,2025-10-01 For generations maps of the pilgrimage roads and of the reconquista have bedevilled the study of Spanish art and architecture They have also infiltrated the popular imagination and come to dominate the ways we think about Spain and Portugal Art in Spain and Portugal from the Romans to the Early Middle Ages Routes and Myths sets out to diminish the power of these images and to enrich the wider English language literature on early medieval art Starting with the Romans and working through the vertical layers to the early Romanesque period Rose Walker draws

F. Ryan, 2022-11-17 This is the first full length study of the life and work of novelist Gerald O'Donovan 1871-1942 a Catholic priest and social and cultural activist who having abandoned the priesthood became a writer and publisher As a priest in Loughrea Co Galway he was a very public figure in Irish life in several different areas He was friendly with W.B. Yeats Lady Gregory and George Moore and actively promoted the Celtic Revival He was also a friend of Douglas Hyde and Sir Horace Plunkett and for a number of years he was a national figure in their respective organizations the Gaelic League and the Co-operative Movement After his marriage to Beryl Verschoyle he moved to England and subsequently published six novels the best known and most controversial of which was Father Ralph 1913 a portrait of the artist as a priest He also spent time working in the British Department of Propaganda under Lord Northcliffe where H.G. Wells was one of his colleagues This biography of an important and strangely neglected figure allows us new insights into a whole range of interesting cultural moments in twentieth century Irish life including the beginnings of literary modernism the flourishing of the Irish literary revival and the emergence of a dissident strand within the Catholic clergy Based on a rich and previously untapped array of archival material in Ireland Britain and the US the book provides both a much needed reassessment of O'Donovan's work and also a history of Irish writing during those early decades of the twentieth century that saw the development of a new and powerful national literature Algarve Building Ricardo Agarez, 2016-06-03 Foreword by Adrian Forty The Algarve is not

The Political Agency of British Migrants Fiona Ferbrache, Jeremy MacClancy, 2020-12-30 This book offers a comparative analysis of the political agency of British migrants in Spain and France and explores how they struggle for a sense of belonging in the wake of Brexit With the UK's departure from the European Union EU Britons are set to lose EU citizenship as their political rights are redefined This book examines the impacts this is having on Britons living in two EU countries It moves beyond the political agency of underprivileged migrants to demonstrate that those who are relatively well off also have political subjectivities they can enter the political fray if their fundamental values or key interests are challenged This book is based on ethnographic inquiry into the political agency of Britons in the Spanish Province of Alicante and South West France in the twenty first century Themes such as Britons becoming elected as local councillors in their countries of residence migrants reactions to Brexit organisation of anti Brexit campaigners and claims for residency and citizenship are examined The book foregrounds the contemporary practice theory built on the work of Pierre Bourdieu as well as Engin Isin's approach to enacting citizenship to provide empirical insights into the political participation of Britons It does so by demonstrating how the elected councillors stood against gross moral inequity and fought for a sense of local belonging how campaigners emoted digitally in reaction to Brexit and how some migrants keen to remain without worry learnt both to navigate and to contest the policy and practice of national bureaucracies This book makes a first ever contribution to the fields of anthropology and geography in the study of impacts of Brexit on British migrants within Europe It is also the first study into lifestyle migrants as political agents It will thus appeal to anthropologists human geographers sociologists as well as academics and students of citizenship studies migration studies European studies and political geography
