Economia New Economic Systems To Empower People And Support The Living World:

Economia Geoffrey Frederick Davies,2004 Most of us feel that the brave new world of globalism hasn't delivered. If as our leaders tell us the industrial and technological revolutions existed to make our lives freer and easier why are we still stressed? In a time of unprecedented prosperity for the Western world why do we feel impoverished? Geoff Davies explains how the economic systems under which we live do not fit the needs of the people they're supposed to serve. Drawing on his scientific background he describes the way the natural world operates and argues that there is no reason why economies can't operate according to the same principles as the human societies and the living systems from which they have emerged. Economia is an engagingly written far-reaching critique that provides compelling evidence for a new way of thinking about our institutions, the natural world and ourselves.

Climate Action Mark Diesendorf,2009 Climate Action is a campaign manual that draws upon positive case studies of successful grass roots social movements from the last few decades and presents a menu of strategies for activists and citizens who want to pressure governments and businesses to create a framework for big and rapid reductions in greenhouse gas emissions.

Pathways to a Sustainable Economy Moazzem Hossain,Robert Hales,Tapan Sarker,2017-10-24 The focus of this edited volume is to identify challenges facing organizations in achieving zero greenhouse gas emissions by 2050 and a new energy economy and to explore solutions from various sectors of the economy to enable the transition to a zero emissions future. Research presented here is divided into three parts with an introductory statement on growth and sustainability. Part one discusses strategies towards a sustainable economy under a zero emissions goal. Part two contains industry specific case studies focusing on construction and related activities. Part three is devoted to country specific case studies from the Asia Pacific region. Each of the chapters address one or more of the following issues: restoration, mitigation, adaptation and/or promoting resilience in the face of climate change as part of achieving a sustainable economy. The volume is multi-disciplinary in nature drawing on various disciplines in social science, business, environment and policy and will be of interest to UN development agencies, academic institutions, government policy makers, NGOs and business leaders.

Westerly ,2004 Who Owns Your Health? Thomas Alured Faunce,2008-01-02 Across the globe large corporations are dominating the supply and delivery of health care products and services and altering the behavior of health professionals. In Who Owns Your Health Thomas Faunce applies moral, bioethical and human rights perspectives to examine how the privatization of health care affects the public good. Drawing on the author's rich knowledge of relevant law, philosophy and literature, his personal experience on the front lines of clinical medicine and interviews with players who are intimately familiar with the pharmaceutical industry, this elegantly written analysis explores the urgent issues surrounding growing corporate influence on health policy and medical professionalism. In addressing the inherent tensions involved in the business of health care, Faunce promotes a framework by which the benefits of corporate competition might be better harnessed to promote patient well-being while acknowledging the need to ensure that global health remains backgrounds face substantial income losses necessitating basic needs support and enhanced provision of public services particularly for the large families that are more likely to migrate Agriculture a critical sector for rural livelihoods has been significantly affected across all states Most households reported not cultivating land during the summer season of 2023 due to the conflict The sharp reduction in the area of crops planted underscores the need for support for farming activities particularly for smallholder households The survey highlights extensive exposure to shocks among rural households with personal shocks such as illnesses among household members being the most common Natural and climatic shocks although less prevalent alongside conflict related shocks like theft and violence emphasize the complex challenges faced by these communities Market access and disruptions have further impacted rural households with a considerable proportion of rural households unable to sell or buy goods primarily due to high prices and sharp reductions in income for most households These market challenges coupled with the overall economic instability necessitate interventions aimed at maintaining and improving market accessibility and functionality to promote recovery and resilience The findings from the analysis of the survey data lend support to designing and implementing comprehensive strategies that address the immediate needs of displaced populations and other rural households affected by income losses and market disruptions Enhancing public services supporting livelihoods building resilience through shock responsive social protection systems agricultural and economic interventions and ensuring equitable access to resources and markets for all households particularly those headed by women and vulnerable groups are the principal policy recommendations that emerged from this analysis This study of rural household livelihoods amid the armed conflict in Sudan provides a foundation for targeted interventions and policy reforms aimed at mitigating the conflict's impacts and fostering long term resilience and economic stability
