addresses the contributions made by analytical chemistry to the characterisation of 18th and early 19th Century English and Welsh porcelains commencing with the earliest reports of Sir Arthur Church and of Herbert Eccles and Bernard Rackham using chemical digestion techniques and concluding with the most recent instrumental experiments which together span more than a hundred years of study From the earliest experiments which required necessarily the sacrifice of significant portions of each specimen which may already have been damaged to the latest experiments which needed only microsampling or the non destructive interrogation of valuable perfect specimens a comprehensive survey is undertaken of more than twenty manufactories of quality porcelains The correlation is made between the quantitative elemental oxide determinations of the scanning electron microscopic diffraction and Xray fluorescence data and the qualitative molecular spectroscopic Raman data to demonstrate their complementarity and use in the holistic forensic assessment of the origin of the fired porcelains this will form the groundwork for the adoption of analytical techniques for the attribution of unknown or questionable porcelains to their potential source factories The book will also examine the perception of what constitutes a porcelain and its definitions and examines the assignment of porcelains to types which currently employs the definitions of hard paste soft paste hybrid magnesian and bone china from the conclusions derived from the analytical data and a consideration of the raw materials employed in their manufacturing processes During the discussion of this analytical evidence several themes and protocols have been established for its utilisation in the potential identification of porcelains and several case studies undertaken for this purpose are cited The book will be of interest to analytical scientists to museum ceramics curators and to ceramics historians

Empire of Tea Markman Ellis,Richard Coulton,Matthew Mauger,2015-06-15 Although tea had been known and consumed in China and Japan for centuries it was only in the seventeenth century that Londoners first began drinking it Over the next two hundred years its stimulating properties seduced all of British society as tea found its way into cottages and castles alike One of the first truly global commodities and now the world's most popular drink tea has also today come to epitomize British culture and identity This impressively detailed book offers a rich cultural history of tea from its ancient origins in China to its spread around the world The authors recount tea's arrival in London and follow its increasing salability and import via the East India Company throughout the eighteenth century inaugurating the first regular exchange both commercial and cultural between China and Britain They look at European scientists' struggles to understand tea's history and medicinal properties and they recount the ways its delicate flavor and exotic preparation have enchanted poets and artists Exploring everything from its everyday use in social settings to the political and economic controversies it has stirred such as the Boston Tea Party and the First Opium War they offer a multilayered look at what was ultimately an imperial industry a collusion and often clash between the world's greatest powers over control of a simple beverage that has become an enduring pastime

Raman Spectroscopy in Archaeology and Art History Peter Vandenabeele, Howell Edwards, 2018-10-26 Ten years after the first volume this book highlights the important contribution Raman spectroscopy makes as a non destructive method for characterising the chemical composition of objects with archaeological and historical importance The original book was ground breaking in its concept but the past ten years have seen some advancement into new areas consolidation of some of the older ones and novel applications involving portable instrumentation on site in museums and in the field This new volume maintains the topic at the cutting edge the Editors have approached prominent contributors to provide case studies sorted into themes Starting with a Foreword from the British Museum Director of Scientific Research and an Introduction from the Editors which offer general background information and theoretical context the contributions then provide global perspectives on this powerful analytical tool Aimed at scientists involved in conservation conservators and curators who want to better understand their collections at a material level and researchers of cultural heritage The Antique Buyer's Handbook Peter Cook,1988 The Complete Color Encyclopedia of Antiques ,1975 Welsh Armorial Porcelain Howell G. M. Edwards,2022-05-05 Armorial porcelains comprised the output of most European ceramics factories in the 18th and 19th Centuries in response to the large quantity of armorial porcelain services that were being imported from China bearing the coats of arms and crests of aristocratic families Whereas these armorial services have been identified and covered for most porcelain manufactories the information relevant to their production by the two relatively short lived Nantgarw and Swansea China Works has not been addressed as a theme until now As an integral component of the holistic forensic appraisal of porcelain a functional and decorative artwork manifestly part of our cultural heritage and its ongoing preservation the recording and identification of such artefacts is material for the future establishment of a database of factory production The Nantgarw and Swansea factories only operated for a limited period in the second decade of the 19th Century and their porcelains were much appreciated for their high quality and desirability by Georgian households Today examples are to be found in many museums and ceramics collections and continue to excite the interest of specialists and the general public This text provides the first comprehensive assessment of armorial porcelains from these two factories and the methodology and procedure for the identification of unknown armorial bearings and crests is illustrated individual bearings are discussed in detail and existing incorrect assignments in the literature are re appraised The difficulties in attribution of armorial heraldic achievements that are only minimally depicted are considered and directions for further studies using historical documentation are invoked This book therefore fills a currently existing gap in the ceramics literature of the 19th Century
