Carr, Brad J. Porfilio, 2012-05-31 What is the meaning of peace why should we study it and how should we achieve it Although there are an increasing number of manuscripts curricula and initiatives that grapple with some strand of peace education there is nonetheless a dearth of critical cross disciplinary international projects books that examine peace education in conjunction with war and conflict Within this volume the authors contend that war military conflict violence are not a nebulous far away mysterious venture rather they argue that we are all collectively involved in perpetrating and perpetuating militarization conflict violence inside and outside of our own social circles Therefore education about and against war can be as liberating as it is necessary If war equates killing can our schools avoid engaging in the examination of what war is all about If education is not about peace then is it about war Can a society have education that willfully avoids considering peace as its central objective Can a democracy exist if pivotal notions of war and peace are not understood practiced advocated and ensconced in public debate These questions according to Carr and Porfilio and the contributors they have assembled merit a critical and extensive reflection This book seeks to provide a range of epistemological policy pedagogical curriculum and institutional analyses aimed at facilitating meaningful engagement toward a more robust and critical examination of the role that schools play and can play in framing war militarization and armed conflict and significantly the connection to peace

Schooling for Peaceful Development in Post-Conflict

Societies Clive Harber, 2019-05-13 This book explores how and if formal education affects peacebuilding in post conflict societies As schooling is often negatively implicated in violent conflict the author highlights the widely expressed need to build back better and transform schooling by changing both its structures and processes and its curriculum Drawing upon research from a wide range of post conflict developing societies including Cambodia Colombia and Kenya the author examines whether there is any empirical support for the idea that schooling can be transformed so it can contribute to more peaceful and democratic societies In doing so the author reveals how the myth of building back better is perpetuated by academics and international organisations and explains why formal education in post conflict developing societies is so impervious to radical change This important volume will appeal to students and scholars of education in post conflict societies Peace Education in Conflict and Post-Conflict Societies C. McGlynn, 2009-04-13 This collection of peace education efforts in conflict and post conflict societies brings together an international group of scholars to offer the very latest theoretical and pedagogical developments Rather than focus on ad hoc peace education efforts this book investigates the need for long term systemic approaches and innovative pedagogies Peace Education and Your School Victoria.
