Going Comprehensive Educational Policy Making In Two County Boroughs:

Going Comprehensive Richard Batley, 1970 Going Comprehensive Richard Batley, Oswald O'Brien, Henry Parris, 1970-01-01 Education and Policy in England in the Twentieth Century Richard Aldrich, Dennis Dean, Peter Gordon, 2013-05-13 In the 1990s education has become one of the major social and political questions of the day This book has been written to provide an authoritative guide to the issues which underlie the formulation of educational policy It stands both as a substantial historical study in its own right and as an essential background and introduction to the current educational debate Policy-making in Secondary Education Rene Saran, 1973 Social Policy and Administration Revisited David Donnison, Valerie Chapman, Michael Meacher, Angela Sears, Kenneth Urwin, 2021-11-07 Originally published in 1965 this standard work sets out to explore the questions What is social administration and how can people prepare themselves for this work It shows the social services in continuous evolution in response to political economic and social change and it ends with a deeply thoughtful and thought provoking analysis of the processes and causes of this evolution and of the different contributions to change made by the various parties concerned This analysis is based on the case studies presented in the book's central chapters Of this new version of the book first published in 1975 Professor Donnison wrote The first three chapters of the original book have been scrapped and a new introduction to the whole subject takes their place an introduction not only to the literature about social policy and administration but to the point and purpose of the subject for students who rightly expect to be convinced about this before devoting their time to it Then follow eight case studies of innovations in the work and policies of local units of the social services including housing education a home help service planning and legal aid besides social work services These are the original studies untouched I have returned to each agency and found out what has happened since our original studies adding a postscript to each outlining the main developments since the original research ten to twenty years ago I don't think anyone has ever done that before In most cases the innovating trends we identified have gone further often becoming national orthodoxy by now The one on legal aid where unexpected developments have occurred is at least as interesting Professor Donnison has added a ninth case study of the Department of Social Administration at the London School of Economics where he was working when the original studies were made Professor Richard Titmuss was head of the department at that time This study traces the development of education for social workers at a seminal stage and the difficult problems which had to be resolved when major new departures occurred in this field The chapter will be of lasting interest to historians of social work and social work education in Britain besides throwing light on the process of innovation in social policy The Crisis of the Meritocracy Peter Mandler, 2020-09-11 Before the Second World War only about 20% of the population went to secondary school and barely 2% to university today everyone goes to secondary school and half of all young people go to university How did we get here from there The Crisis of the Meritocracy answers this question not by looking to politicians and educational reforms but to the revolution in attitudes and expectations amongst the post war British public the rights guaranteed by the welfare state the hope of a better life for one's children widespread upward mobility from manual to non manual occupations confidence in the importance of education in a learning society and a knowledge economy As a result of these transformations meritocracy the idea that a few should be selected to succeed has been challenged by democracy and its wider understandings of equal opportunity across the life course At a time when doubts have arisen about whether we need so many students and amidst calls for a return to grammar school selection at 11 the tension between meritocracy and democracy remains vital to understanding why our grandparents our parents ourselves and our children have sought and got more and more education and to what end

The Conservative Party and the Destruction of Selective Education in Post-War Britain Piers Legh, 2023-01-26 The book tells the untold story of the Conservative Party's involvement in terms of stance and policy in the destruction of selective state education from 1945 up to the present day Close consideration is paid to their attitudes and prejudices towards education both in power and in opposition Legh examines the Party's responses to the pressure for comprehensive schooling and egalitarianism from the Labour Party and the British left In doing so Legh defies current historiography to demonstrate that the Party were not passive actors in the advancement of comprehensive schooling The lively narrative is moved along by the author's critical examination of the Education Ministers throughout this period Florence Horsbrugh and David Eccles serving under Churchill and Eden and also Quintin Hogg and Geoffrey Lloyd under Macmillan as well as Edward Boyle and Margaret Thatcher under Edward Heath Legh's detailed research utilises a range of government documents personal papers parliamentary debates and newspapers to provide this crucial re-assessment of the Conservative Party and selective education and in doing so questions over simplistic generalisations about wholesale support for selective education policy It reveals instead questioning compromises and disagreements within the Party and its political and ideological allies The result is a stimulating revival of existing scholarship which will be of interest to scholars of British education and politics

Education as History Harold Silver, 2013-10-28 Originally published 1983 This book explores the nature of the social history of education It examines what aspects of the history of education have been neglected and why The themes explored include the relationship between education and the emergence of social science the reputations of educationists expectations of higher education in the twentieth century the use of education against poverty and education as policy and case study

The Reorganisation of British Local Government John Dearlove, 1979-09-20 This volume was first published in 1979 just a few years after the Local Government Act of 1972 redrew the map of British local government Local authorities were also encouraged to change their organization and methods of work anxiety was expressed about finance councillor calibre and the credibility of the whole system itself and neighbourhood councils and public participation in planning were introduced John Dearlove's aim is to make sense of these changes and the discussion they generated He does this by showing that both the official case for reorganization and the academic discussion of it have hindered their own understanding by uncritically accepting superficial traditional wisdoms which fail to reveal the concealed ideological positions behind reorganization Thus he aims to develop a truly political perspective on reorganisation which is rounded out and given greater depth by the insertion at appropriate points of comparative material drawn from American experience and studies

A Bibliography of British History, 1914-1989 Keith Robbins, American Historical Association, Royal Historical Society (Great Britain), 1996 Containing over 25 000 entries this unique volume will be absolutely indispensable for all those with an interest in Britain in the twentieth century Accessibly arranged by theme with helpful introductions to each chapter a huge range of topics is covered There is a comprehensive index
