Schein David Coghlan, 2024-01-30 The contribution of Edgar H Schein to the field of management organisation studies and applied behavioural science is both extensive and deep For almost 70 years he has creatively and systematically shaped theory and practice in areas including organisation development and change career dynamics the cultural dynamics of complex systems leadership process consultation and the clinical inquiry research paradigm He has written extensively on the process of organisational change and framed the construct of the clinical approach to research With such an extensive corpus over such a long period Schein has been termed a transcendent thought leader and it is in this spirit that a volume exploring his work offers a contribution how scholars and practitioners can come to understand their engagement in organisations This singular volume adopts a reflective perspective on the work of Edgar Schein as a social scientist and shows how he developed his craft as an engaged organisational scholar practitioner through reflexive attention to his experience in working with managers and organisations and generating knowledge out of action The intended contribution is both to present Schein s work to students and scholars of organisation studies and to offer a reflexive methodological framework to engage scholar practitioner in any field The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com>

Becoming a Manager Linda A. Hill, 2019-02-26 Making the leap to management and leadership. In your career or anyone's, there is one transition that stands out as the most crucial: going from individual contributor to competent manager. New managers have to learn how to lead others rather than do the work themselves to win trust and respect, to motivate and to strike the right balance between delegation and control. Many fail to make the transition successfully. In this timeless, indispensable book, Harvard Business School professor and leadership guru Linda Hill traces the experiences of nineteen new managers over the course of their first year in the role. She reveals the complexity of the transition, highlighting the expectations of these managers, their subordinates and their superiors. We hear the new managers describe how they reframed their understanding of their roles and responsibilities, how they learned to build effective cross-functional work relationships, how and when they used individual and organizational resources, and how they learned to cope with the inevitable stresses of leadership. Hill vividly shows that becoming a manager is a profound psychological adjustment, a true transformation, as well as a continuous process of learning from experience. Becoming a Manager, a veritable treasury of essential leadership wisdom, is a book you will turn to again and again, no matter where you are on your career journey.

Doing Prison Work Elaine M. Crawley, 2013-01-11 This book provides a much-needed sociological account of the social world of the English prison officer, making an original contribution to our understanding of the inner life of prisons in general and the working lives of prison officers in particular. As well as revealing how the job of the prison officer and of the prison itself is accomplished on a day-to-day basis, the book explores not only what prison officers do but also how they feel about their work. In focusing on how prison officers feel about their work, this book makes a number of interesting revelations about the essentially domestic nature of much of the work they do, about the degree of emotional labour invested in it, and about the performance nature of many of the day-to-day interactions between officers and prisoners. Finally, the book follows the prison officer home after work, showing how the prison can spill over into their home lives and family relationships. Based on extensive ethnographic fieldwork in different types of prisons, including interviews with prison officers, wives and children, as well as prison officers themselves, this book will be essential reading for all those with an interest in how prisons and organisations more generally operate in practice.
