Race, Nation, and Reform Ideology in Winnipeg, 1880s-1920s Kurt Korneski, 2015-06-09 During the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries a host of journalists ministers medical doctors businessmen lawyers labor leaders politicians and others called for an assault on poverty slums disreputable boarding houses alcoholism prostitution sweatshop conditions inadequate educational facilities and other social evils Although they represented an array of political positions and advocated a range of strategies to deal with what they deemed problems historians have come to term this impulse urban reform or the urban reform movement This book considers the history of reform ideology in Canada It does so by considering four leading reformers living in what might be described as the most Canadian of Canadian cities Winnipeg Manitoba While the book engages in discussions debates surrounding the particular individuals it considers its more general argument is that to understand the history of reform in Canada requires viewing reformers as simultaneously experiencing and responding to two basic phenomena simultaneously It requires understanding them as confronting the polarizing tendencies exploitation and sometimes grinding poverty that was central to the economic order they often unwittingly helped to impose in northern North America It also however requires seeing them as fundamentally shaped by the process and legacy of the dispossession of Aboriginal peoples and the changing nature of Aboriginal settler relations that were also central to the development of Canada

Boys in the Pits Robert Gordon McIntosh, 2000 Beginning early in the nineteenth century thousands of Canadian boys some as young as eight laboured underground driving pit ponies along narrow passageways manipulating ventilation doors and helping miners cut and load coal at the coalface to produce the energy that fuelled Canada's industrial revolution Boys died in the mines in explosions and accidents but they also organised strikes for better working conditions but were instead expelled from the mines and lost their jobs Boys in the Pits shows the rapid maturity of the boys and their role in resisting exploitation In what will certainly be a controversial interpretation of child labour Robert McIntosh recasts wage earning children as more than victims showing that they were individuals who responded intelligently and resourcefully to their circumstances Boys in the Pits is particularly timely as despite the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child accepted by the General assembly in 1989 child labour still occurs throughout the world and continues to generate controversy McIntosh provides an important new perspective from which to consider these debates reorienting our approach to child labour explaining rather than condemning the practice Within the broader social context of the period where the place of children was being redefined as and limited to the home school and playground he examines the role of changing technologies alternative sources of unskilled labour new divisions of labour changes in the family economy and legislation to explore the changing extent of child labour in the mines Robert McIntosh is employed at the National Archives of Canada Newsworkers Hanno Hardt, Bonnie Brennen, 1995 What most of us know about media history begins and ends with Citizen Kane The exploits of media moguls and visionary business leaders these are the tales that fill media histories in the United States What's missing is a crucial part of the picture the rank and file of journalism and the conditions under which they produced and participated in the business of journalism Newsworkers supplies this side of the story Focusing on the period from the 1850s through the 1930s the contributors show how issues of labor and class have been far more important in the formation of media institutions than previous accounts concede These essays recover the history of ethnic and cultural diversity including the contributions of women that have enriched the process of communication A Fatherly Eye Robin Brownlie, 2003-01-01 In A Fatherly Eye historian Robin Brownlie examines how paternalism and assimilation during the interwar period were made manifest in the field far from the bureaucrats in Ottawa but never free of their oppressive supervision All Things in Common Ruth Compton Brouwer, 2021-06-29 In the first decade of the twentieth century a few closely related families established a utopian community in Canada's smallest province Known officially as B Compton Limited but described by a journalist in 1935 as Prince Edward Island's unique brotherly love community this utopia owed its longevity to the cohesion provided by its communal organization dense kin ties and long held millenarianism and to a decidedly pragmatic approach to business All Things in Common demonstrates how an utopian such a community could be while problematizing the contention that the inevitable end of all utopian experiments is a full blown dystopia Beginning with a compelling backstory and locating the Compton community in the historiography of North American utopias the author goes on to explore the community's business endeavours its religious familial and transgressive aspects and its brief period of international fame before assessing the factors that led to its dissolution in 1947 Providing a strong narrative framework All Things in Common draws on rich family and archival records and diverse secondary sources concluding with a consideration of the community's legacy for its alumni and their descendants Dreams of Equality Joan Sangster, 1989-12-15 Canadian women on the political left in the first half of the twentieth century fought with varying degrees of commitment for women's rights Women's dreams of equality were in part a vision of economic and class equality though they also represented profound desires for equality with men both within their own parties and in the larger society In both the Communist Party of Canada and the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation a male dominated leadership seldom embraced women's causes wholeheartedly or as a doctrinal priority So called women's issues whether birth control consumer issues or equal pay usually took second place to an emphasis on the general needs of workers or farmers Nonetheless many women continued to promote their feminist causes through the socialist movement in the hope that eventually the socialist New Jerusalem would see their dreams of equality fulfilled In Dreams of Equality Joan Sangster chronicles in fascinating detail the first tentative stages of a politically aware women's movement in Canada from the time of women's suffrage to the 1950s when the CPC went into decline and the CCF began to experience the changes that would evolve into the New Democratic Party a decade later City of Order Michael Boudreau, 2012-05-15 Interwar Halifax was a city in flux a place where citizens debated adopting new ideas and technologies but agreed on one thing modernity was corrupting public morality and unleashing untold social problems on their fair city In this context citizens policy makers and officials turned to the criminal justice system to create a bulwark against further social dislocation Officials modernized the city's machinery of order courts prisons and the police force and placed greater emphasis on crime control while residents supported tough on crime measures and attached little importance to rehabilitation These initiatives gave birth to a constructed vision of a criminal class that singled out ethnic minorities working class men and female and juvenile offenders as problem figures in the eternal quest for order Michael Boudreau's in depth study of crime and culture in interwar Halifax the first of its kind shows how tough on crime measures can compound rather than resolve social inequalities and dislocations Angels of the Workplace Mercedes Steedman, 1997-01-01

In this study of the clothing industry in Canada historian Mercedes Steedman examines how the intricate weaving together of the meanings of class gender ethnicity family and workplace served often unconsciously to create a job ghetto for women

Bedside Matters Kathryn M. McPherson, Kathryn McPherson, 2003-01-01 Nursing embodies the seemingly timeless characteristics of feminine healing caring and nurturing yet this archetypally female vocation also boasts a distinctive and complex history Bedside Matters traces four generations of Canadian nurses to explore changes in who became nurses what work they performed and how they organized to defend their occupational interests Whether in the apprenticeship method of the early twentieth century or in the present day restructuring of hospital work the position of nurses within the health care system has been structured by class gender and ethnic and racial relations Located between the doctors and untrained or subsidiary patient care attendants nurses have struggled to define the boundaries of their occupation vis vis other members of the health care hierarchy even as tensions between bedside and administrative nurses created divisions within nursing itself Focusing on the daily labours of ordinary nurses McPherson argues that the persisting sex typing of nursing as women's work has meant that gender consistently complicated nursing's easy categorization as either professional or proletariat Combining archival records and oral histories the author shows how nurses in their work activities and social and sexual attitudes sought recognition as skilled workers in the health care system Previously published by Oxford University Press

Loyalties in Conflict John Irvine Little, 2008-01-01 Loyalties in Conflict examines how the allegiance to British authority of the American origin population within the borders of Lower Canada was tested by the War of 1812 and the Rebellions of 1837 1838 Make the Night Hideous Pauline Greenhill, 2010-01-01 Make the Night Hideous explores mysterious transformation of the charivari using four detailed case studies from different time periods and locations across English Canada as well as first person accounts of more recent charivari participants The Age of Light, Soap, and Water

Mariana Valverde, 2008-06-28 BACK IN PRINT WITH A NEW INTRODUCTION The turn of the last century saw a great wave of moral fervour among Protestant social reformers in English Canada Their targets for moral reform were various sex hygiene immigration policy slum clearance prostitution and white slavery Mariana Valverde's groundbreaking The Age of Light Soap and Water examines the work and the ideas of moralist clergy social workers politicians and bureaucrats who sought to maintain or create a white Protestant Canada The morality idealized by evangelical feminist and medical activists was not as is often assumed completely repressive and puritanical On the contrary the self defined social purity movement at the centre of this book talked endlessly about sex in order to create a healthy sexuality among both native born and immigrant Canadians Sexual health was linked to racial purity and both of these were in turn linked to efforts to abolish urban slums by means of symbolic as well as physical light soap and water This study uncovers a little known dimension of Canadian social history and shows that moral reform was not the project of a marginal puritanical group but was central to the race class and gender organization of modern English Canada Craft Capitalism Robert B. Kristofferson, 2007-12-29 Many studies have concluded that the effects of early industrialization on traditional craftworkers were largely negative Robert B Kristofferson demonstrates however that in at least one area this was not the case Craft Capitalism focuses on Hamilton Ontario and demonstrates how the preservation of traditional work arrangements craft mobility networks and other aspects of craft culture ensured that craftworkers in that city enjoyed an essentially positive introduction to industrial capitalism Kristofferson argues that as former craftworkers themselves the majority of the city's industrial proprietors helped their younger counterparts achieve independence Conflict rooted in capitalist class experience while present was not yet dominant Furthermore he argues while craftworkers experience of the change was more informed by the residual cultures of craft than by the emergent logic of capitalism craft culture in Hamilton was not retrogressive Rather this situation served as a centre of social creation in ways that built on the positive aspects of both systems Based on extensive archival research this controversial and engaging study offers unique insight to the process of industrialization and class formation in Canada
