Food Policies In Europe In The 20th Century:

Eating on the Move from the Eighteenth Century to the Present Rita d'Errico, Stefano Magagnoli, Peter Scholliers, Peter J. Atkins, 2023-06-07 This book focuses on food and meals consumed during travel since the transport revolution and examines the ways in which the introduction of new forms of transport propelled by steam and petrol engines not only affected the way people travel but also led to a transformation in the way we eat Eating on board a train is different from eating on a ship and the same is true for other forms of transport Such differences are not simply a question of quality or variations of menu a unique history has defined each of these different situations a history which is still largely to be studied This volume contains contributions from a mix of established food historians and young researchers Social and economic history overlap with cultural history approaches and forays into the fields of linguistics and art confirming that the field of food history and more generally food studies is by definition a field of transdisciplinary and border research This volume will be of interest for scholars within the field of food history food studies and food culture as well as social and cultural historians dealing with industrialization or social policy

EU Food Law Handbook Bernd Van der Meulen, Bart Wernaart, 2020-09-01 The twenty first century has witnessed a fundamental reform of food law in the European Union to the point where modern EU food law has now come of age This EU Food Law Handbook presents the most significant elements of these legal developments with contributions from a highly qualified international team of academics and practitioners Their analysis is based on a shared vision of the structure and content of EU food law The book takes the perspective of food law embedded within general EU law It highlights the consequences of this combination and provides insights into both substantive and procedural food law Taking the General Food Law as a focal point this handbook systematically analyses and explains the institutional substantive and procedural elements of EU food law Principles are discussed as well as specific rules addressing food as a product the processes related to food and communication about food to consumers through labelling These rules define requirements on subjects like market authorisation for food additives novel foods and genetically modified foods chemical and biological contaminants in food food hygiene tracking tracing withdrawal recall food labelling and claims The powers of public authorities to enforce food law and to deal with incidents are outlined Attention is given to the international context WTO Codex Alimentarius as well as to private standards In addition to the systematic analysis the book includes selected topics such as nutrition and health policy special foods food import requirements food contact materials intellectual property private food law and animal feed In this new edition existing chapters have been updated to take account of many important developments in legislation and case law Several new topics have been added to the analysis such as the right to food organics and food fraud The EU Food Law Handbook is produced in co operation with the European Institute for Food Law It is relevant for practitioners and academics both with and without a background in law It is ideal for education purposes

European Empires on a Plate Ilaria Berti, Stefano Magagnoli, Peter Scholliers, Peter J. Atkins, 2025-06-30 This book uses food to explore the uneven and multifaceted encounters between European imperial societies and their colonies examining the cultural social political and economic forces behind European empires Food is a key focus of current transdisciplinary and border research and these chapters uncover hidden aspects of imperial dynamics and the search for food in European expansion Containing contributions from a mix of established food historians and young researchers in the field the collection utilizes a range of sources including colonial government records trademark and patent records cookery books agronomic and botanical treaties television shows newspaper and magazine articles and advertisements While the book discusses empires influence on the colonies and their foodways it also reveals inter imperial connections and interdependence by highlighting the effect of colonial foods on the metropolises European Empires on a Plate is a valuable resource for scholars in the fields of food history food studies and food culture as well as social and cultural historians

Europe's Green Revolution and Others Since Jonathan Harwood, 2012-05-04 How best to foster agricultural development in the Third World has long been a subject of debate and from a European perspective the persistent failure to design peasant friendly technology is puzzling From the late 19th century for example various western European countries also underwent green revolutions in which systematic attempts were made to promote the adoption of technological innovation by peasant farmers This book focuses on the development of public sector plant breeding in Germany from the late nineteenth century through its fate under National Socialism Harwood uses this historical case study in order to argue that peasant friendly research has an important role to play in future Green Revolutions

The Political Economy of the Common Agricultural Policy Fernando Collantes, 2020-03-19 What is the balance of the European Union's Common Agricultural Policy more than half a century after its birth Does it illustrate the virtues of the European model of coordinated capitalism as opposed to US style liberal capitalism Or is it an incoherent set of instruments that exert diverse negative impacts and like Frankenstein's monster seems to have escaped the control of its designers The Political Economy of the Common Agricultural Policy does not criticize the CAP from the liberal standpoint that views most public interventions in the economy as bad for efficiency and welfare The CAP has been costly to Europeans both as consumers and as taxpayers and has also generated a number of negative impacts upon third countries but these costs and impacts have been more moderate than is suggested This book proposes that the issue with the CAP is not a generic problem of coordinating capitalism but instead a more specific problem of low quality coordination The text argues that profound reform of the European Union's institutions and policies is required to counter the rapid rise of a more Eurosceptical state of mind but in the case of agricultural policy history casts serious doubts on the capacity of the European network of agriculture related politicians to lead such a reform This key work is essential reading for researchers graduate students and master's level docents of the Common Agricultural Policy and more broadly European Union policy and reform

Political Power and Economic Policy Gordon C. Rausser, Johan Swinnen, Pinhas Zusman, 2011-09-30 This book analyzes the links between political economics governance structures and the distribution of political power in economic policy making The book theoretically explains and empirically quantifies these interactions The analysis includes both public good policies and redistributive policies Part I of the book presents the conceptual foundations of political economic bargaining and interest group analysis After presenting the underlying theory Part II of the book examines ideology prescription and political power coefficients Part III analyzes a number of specific structures and Part IV presents a framework for political econometrics with a number of empirical applications and testable hypotheses In all four parts of the book four analytical dimensions of public policy are distinguished governance structures political economy mechanism design and incidence

The Soviet Dream World of Retail Trade and Consumption in the 1930s A. Randall, 2008-10-01 In the early 1930s Soviet authorities launched a campaign to create socialist retailing and also endorsed Soviet consumerism How did the Stalinist regime reconcile retailing and consumption with socialism This book examines the discourses that the Stalinist regime s new approach to retailing and consumption engendered

European Food Law Raymond O'Rourke, 1998 European food law has developed piecemeal over time There has been no central text setting out the principles and defining the obligations of those working in the European food industry In 1997 the European Commission published a Green Paper on Food Law identifying the basic goals

Food Policy Tim Lang, David Barling, Martin Caraher, 2009-03-19 For over half a century food policy has mapped a path for progress based upon a belief that the right mix of investment scientific input and human skills could unleash a surge in productive capacity which would resolve humanity's food related health and welfare problems It assumed that more food would yield greater health and happiness by driving down prices increasing availability and feeding more mouths In the 21st century this policy mix is quietly becoming unstuck In a world marred by obesity alongside malnutrition climate change alongside fuel and energy crises water stress alongside more mouths to feed and social inequalities alongside unprecedented accumulation of wealth the old rubric of food policy needs re evaluation This book explores the enormity of what the new policy mix must address taking the approach that food policy must be inextricably linked with public health environmental damage and social inequalities to be effective Written by three authors with differing backgrounds one in political science another in environmental health and health promotion and the third in social psychology this book reflects the myriad of perspectives essential to a comprehensive view of modern food policy It attempts to make sense of what is meant by food policy explores whether the term has any currency in current policy discourse assesses whether current policies help or hinder what happens judges whether consensus can triumph in the face of competing bids for understanding looks at all levels of governance across the range of actors in the food system from companies and the state to civil society and science considers what direction food policies are taking not just in the UK but internationally assesses who and what gains or loses in the making of these food policies and identifies a modern framework for judging how good or limited processes of policy making are This book provides a major comprehensive review of current and past food policy thinking and proposing the need for what the authors call an ecological public health approach to food policy Nothing less will be fit for the 21st century

Case Studies in Food Policy for Developing Countries Per Pinstrup-Andersen, Fuzhi Cheng, 2018-07-05 The food problems now facing the world scarcity and starvation contamination and illness overabundance and obesity are both diverse and complex What are their causes How severe are they Why do they persist What are the solutions In three volumes that serve as valuable teaching tools and have been designed to complement the textbook Food Policy for Developing Countries by Per Pinstrup Andersen and Derrill D Watson II they call upon the wisdom of disciplines including economics nutrition sociology anthropology environmental science medicine and geography to create a holistic picture of the state of the world's food systems today Volume III of the Case Studies addresses global institutions and international trade policies

The Political Economy of Agricultural Price Distortions Kym Anderson, 2010-08-30 Despite numerous policy reforms since the 1980s farm product prices remain heavily distorted in both high income and developing countries This book seeks to improve our understanding of why societies adopted these policies and why some but not other countries have undertaken reforms Drawing on recent developments in political economy theories and in the generation of empirical measures of the extent of price distortions the present volume provides both analytical narratives of the historical origins of agricultural protectionism in various parts of the world and a set of political econometric analyses aimed at explaining the patterns of distortions that have emerged over the past five decades These new studies shed much light on the forces affecting incentives and those facing farmers in the course of national and global economic and political development They also show how those distortions might change in the future

Bibliography of Agriculture, 1990 The EU's Government of Industries Bernard Jullien, Andy Smith, 2014-08-13 To what extent is business activity governed at a European scale Since the advent of the recent economic crisis the EU's choices about the euro debt ratios and interest rates have caught the headlines and highlighted the importance of EU decision making arenas However these macro economic events actually tell us only part of the story about the extent to which business activity is now governed at a European scale Based upon original research on four manufactured or processed goods industries cars wine pharmaceuticals and aquaculture and driven by theory that is constructivist institutionalist and sociological this book sets out to analyse just what Europe governs by whom and why In doing so it reveals three recurrent features of the European government of industries its omnipresence its incompleteness and its depoliticization The authors show that the many gaps in the EU's mode of governing industries stem from struggles over economic doctrine as well as the continued unwillingness of many actors to accord the EU a legitimacy to act politically in the name of industrial government This book will be of key interest to scholars and students of European Studies and Political Economy as well as those studying Political Science Economics Sociology and Business Studies

Food safety, modernization, and food prices: Evidence from milk in Ethiopia Minten, Bart, Habte, Yetimwork, Baye, Kaleab, Tamru, Seneshaw, 2020-07-02 Modern marketing arrangements are increasingly being implemented to assure improved food quality and safety However it is not well known how these modern marketing arrangements perform in early stages of roll out We study this issue in the case of rural urban milk value chains in Ethiopia where modern processing companies selling branded pasteurized milk and modern retail have expanded rapidly in recent years We find overall that the adoption levels of hygienic practices and practices leading to safer milk by dairy producers in Ethiopia are low and that there are no significant differences between traditional and modern milk value chains While suppliers to modern processing companies are associated with more formal milk testing they do not obtain price premiums for the adoption of improved practices nor do they obtain higher prices overall Rewards to suppliers by modern processing companies are mostly done through non price mechanisms At the urban retail level we surprisingly find that there are no price differences between branded pasteurized and raw milk and that modern retailers sell pasteurized milk at lower prices ceteris paribus Modern value chains to better reward hygiene and food safety in these settings are therefore called for

Food Policy Michael Davis, AI, 2025-05-06 Food Policy explores the complex interplay of regulation economics and politics that shapes the U S food system It examines how food reaches our plates who decides what's safe and nutritious and the impact of these decisions on public health and the environment The book offers a critical look at the food industry highlighting how consolidation and technological innovation are transforming the food supply chain For example understanding food labeling practices is crucial as they influence consumer choices about nutrition and allergens The book progresses logically first introducing core concepts of food policy and its links to economics politics and public health It then examines the regulatory landscape and the role of food labeling before turning to the food industry itself It emphasizes that effective food policy requires government intervention to correct market failures and protect public interests By integrating economic analysis with political realities and public health concerns Food Policy provides a holistic view making it valuable for policymakers industry professionals and anyone interested in a more sustainable and equitable food system
