For Documentary:

New Challenges for Documentary Alan Rosenthal, 1988 For Documentary Dai Vaughan, 1999-09-15 These essays which span twenty five years of writing and a lifetime of experience offer fresh and challenging insights into documentary Dai Vaughan one of the most highly regarded documentary editors to have worked in Britain in recent decades makes his starting point plain Most of us would feel that the word documentary had not justified its place in the dictionary if the films so called did not manifest some relationship with the world not shared by others That elusive relationship is the subject of his eloquent reflections and analyses As critic Vaughan contrasts the Olympic Games films of Riefenstahl 1936 and Ichikawa 1964 as participant he tells how the introduction of portable 16mm equipment gave rise to cinema vérité and observational visual anthropology The twin perspective of analyst and practitioner results in a radical restatement of the documentary project one in which documentary is seen as engaging the viewer's freedom in a way that fiction does not A chapter near the end From Today Cinema Is Dead is uncompromising in its pessimistic view that digitalization threatens the privileged relationship we have always granted between a photograph and its object Film theorists and filmmakers indeed everyone who cares about how our society represents itself to itself will find For Documentary engrossing as well as illuminating

Documentary's Awkward Turn Jason Middleton, 2013-12-04 Despite the prominence of awkwardness as cultural buzzword and descriptor of a sub genre of contemporary film and television comedy it has yet to be adequately theorized in academic film and media studies Documentary's Awkward Turn contributes a new critical paradigm to the field by presenting an analysis of awkward moments in documentary film and other reality based media formats It examines difficult and disrupted encounters between social actors on the screen between filmmaker and subject and between film and spectator These encounters are of course often inter connected Awkward moments occur when an established mode of representation or reception is unexpectedly challenged stalled or altered when an interviewee suddenly confronts the interviewer when a subject who had been comfortable on camera begins to feel trapped in the frame when a film perceived as a documentary turns out to be a parodic mockumentary This book makes visible the ways in which awkwardness connects and subtends a range of transformative textual strategies political and ethical problematics and modalities of spectatorship in documentary film and media from the 1970s to the present

Puerto Rican Identity, Political Development, and Democracy in New York, 1960-1990 José E. Cruz, 2017-07-21 Using Puerto Rican politics in New York City as a case study particularly focusing on political elites Puerto Rican Identity Political Development and Democracy in New York 1960 1990 argues that ethnic identity is a positive force in political development Jos E Cruz suggests that in using ethnic identity to claim and exercise social and civil rights to pursue representation and to access resources and benefits Puerto Ricans sustained and enriched liberal democracy in New York City This book shows how in carrying out politics in this way Puerto Rican political elites placed themselves out of the margins and into the mainstream of city politics as significant contributors to urban democracy
