Educational Change And Development In The Asiapacific Region Challenges For The Future:

Educational Change and Development in the Asia-Pacific Region Tony Townsend, Centre for Research and International Collaboration, Honk Kong Institute of Education, China Yin Cheong Cheng, 2000-01-01 The past twenty years have seen abundant changes in education in many parts of the world Some of the reform efforts such as those in North America and Europe are well documented However there has been an equally strong movement towards reform in Asia and the Pacific region and this is not nearly as widely known This book intends to redress the balance by demonstrating clearly that the search for improvement in the area of student achievement is a world wide search It also shows that many of the strategies and achievements adopted in the West do not and cannot apply in countries that are still struggling to ensure that every student gets to go to school This book contains eleven reports from countries in the Asia Pacific region that identify a diversity of critical issues policy responses and practical applications all of which are aimed at improving the quality of education The chapters throw into relief the fact that the concerns for quality equity and continuous improvement that are evident in Western nations are also of crucial concern to those in Asia and the Pacific region The book concludes with a chapter identifying some of the critical issues that must still be addressed if the twin aims of quality and equity are to be achieved This book is essential reading for all educational researchers practitioners and policy makers throughout the world

The International Handbook of Educational Research in the Asia-Pacific Region J.P. Keeves, Ryo Watanabe, 2013-11-11 The aim of the Handbook is to present readily accessible but scholarly sources of information about educational research in the Asia Pacific region The scale and scope of the Handbook is such that the articles included in it provide substantive contributions to knowledge and understanding of education in the Asia region In so doing the articles present the problems and issues facing education in the region and the findings of research conducted within the region that contribute to the resolution of these problems and issues Moreover since new problems and issues are constantly arising the articles in the Handbook also indicate the likely directions of future developments The different articles within the Handbook seek to conceptualize the problems in each specific content area under review provide an integration of the research conducted within that area the theoretical basis of the research the practical implications of the research and the contribution of the research towards the resolution of the problems identified Thus the articles do not involve the reporting of newly conducted research but rather require a synthesis of the research undertaken in a particular area with reference to the research methods employed and the theoretical frameworks on which the research is based In general the articles do not advocate a single point of view but rather present alternative points of view and comment on the debate and disagreements associated with the conduct and findings of the research Furthermore it should be noted that the Handbook is not concerned with research methodology and only considers the methods employed in inquiry in so far as the particular methods of research contribute to the effective investigation of problems and issues that have arisen in the conduct and provision of education at different levels within the region

Second International Handbook of Educational Leadership and Administration Kenneth A. Leithwood, P. Hallinger, 2012-12-06 The first International Handbook of Educational Leadership and Administration Leithwood et al was published in 1996 and quickly became something of a best seller for reference works within education Such success we suggest was at least partly due to the unprecedented global waves of concern for improving schools launched in the mid 1980 s combined with a widespread belief in leadership as the single most powerful contribution to such improvement The roots of this belief can be found in evidence produced by the early effective schools research although there is a romance with leadership as an explanation for success in many non school enterprises as well During the two year period during which this current handbook was being written activity in the realms of school leadership school improvement and leadership development gained further momentum The English government created its new National College of School Leadership and several Asian nations announced new initiatives in leadership selection preparation and development

Leadership for Learning, 2008-01-01 The impact of globalization is being felt in numerous spheres of educational policy and practice in rapid growth of information and communication technologies in economic transformation and international market competition all of which conspire to create new demands and place new pressures on school leadership Drawing on examples from 12 countries in different parts of the world The Editors have brought together 28 renowned scholars in Europe Australia North America and Asia Pacific countries to contribute to this book. The first six chapters address key themes and provide the framework for the 12 country reports which follow. With the aim of increasing international understanding and teasing out issues of transfer and application across cultural and linguistic boundaries we have chosen national reports which cover a range of countries representing a diversity of culture and contextual backgrounds. We believe these chapters and the book as a whole can provide important theoretical policy and practical implications that will inform the debate about the future of education and of schooling. While each of these country narratives underscore the importance of context at the same time there are insights and values held in common.

Globalisation and Education Reforms Joseph Zajda, 2018-02-27. This book explores the interrelationship between ideology, the state and education reforms, placing it in a global context. It examines some of the major education reforms and policy issues in a global culture, particularly in light of recent shifts in quality and standards driven education and policy research. The book critiques the neo-liberal ideological imperatives of current education and policy reforms and illustrates the way the shifts in the relationship between the state and education policy affect current trends in education reforms and schooling globally. With this as its focus, the book's individual chapters highlight hand-picked scholarly research on major discourses in the field of comparative education. A compendium of the very latest thinking on the subject, the book like the other volumes in the series offers a state-of-the-art sourcebook for researchers, practitioners and policymakers alike. Not only do the chapters offer a timely overview of current issues affecting comparative education and education policy research in what is now a global educational culture, they also outline future directions that education and policy reforms could take. By doing so, they provide a comprehensive picture of the intersecting and diverse discourses of globalisation and policy driven reforms in education. Individual chapters critically assess the dominant discourses and debates on education and policy reforms. Using diverse comparative education paradigms from critical theory to historical comparative research, they address globalisation, ideology and democracy and examine both the reasons for and outcomes of education reforms and policy change. As such, they provide an informed critique of models of quality and standards driven education reforms that are informed by Western dominant ideologies and social values.

Nina Bascia,Alister Cumming,Amanda Datnow,Kenneth Leithwood,David Livingstone,2008-05-14 Nina Bascia Alister Cumming Amanda Datnow Kenneth Leithwood and David Livingstone This Handbook presents contemporary and emergent trends in educational policy research in over fty chapters written by nearly ninety leading researchers from a number of countries It is organized into ve broad sections which capture many of the current dominant educational policy foci and at the same time situate current understandings historically in terms of both how they are conceptualized and in terms of past policy practice The chapters themselves are empirically grounded providing illustrations of the conceptual implications contained within them as well as allowing for comparisons across them The se re exivity within chapters with respect to jurisdictional particularities and contrasts allows readers to consider not only a range of approaches to policy analysis but also the ways in which policies and policy ideas play out in different times and places. The sections move from a focus on prevailing policy tendencies through increasingly critical and outsider perspectives on policy. They address in turn the contemporary strategic emphasis on large scale reform, substantive emphases at several levels on leadership and governance, improving teacher quality and conceptualizing learning in various domains around the notion of literacies and concluding finally with a contrasting topic, workplace learning, which has had less policy attention and thus allows readers to consider both the advantages and disadvantages of learning and teaching under the bright gaze of policy.
