We Now Disrupt This Broadcast Amanda D. Lotz, 2018-04-06 The collision of new technologies changing business strategies and innovative storytelling that produced a new golden age of TV Cable television channels were once the backwater of American television programming recent and not so recent movies and reruns of network shows Then came La Femme Nikita OZ The Sopranos Mad Men Game of Thrones and The Walking Dead And then just as prestige cable became a category came House of Cards and Netflix Hulu Amazon Video and other Internet distributors of television content What happened In We Now Disrupt This Broadcast Amanda Lotz chronicles the collision of new technologies changing business strategies and innovative storytelling that produced an era termed peak TV Lotz explains that changes in the business of television expanded the creative possibilities of television She describes the costly infrastructure rebuilding undertaken by cable service providers in the late 1990s and the struggles of cable channels to produce and pay for original scripted programming in order to stand out from the competition. These new programs defied television conventions and made viewers adjust their expectations of what television could be. Le Femme Nikita offered cable's first antihero. Mad Men cost more than advertisers paid. The Walking Dead became the first mass cable hit and Game of Thrones was the first global television blockbuster. Internet streaming didn't kill cable. Lotz tells us. Rather, it revolutionized how we watch television. Cable and network television quickly established their own streaming portals. Meanwhile, cable service providers had quietly transformed themselves into Internet providers able to profit from both prestige cable and streaming services. Far from being dead, television continues to transform.
