Meaning of Otherness

Why does it happen that a person in our modern open society still feels alone and alien? The first reason is that you feel that people who surround you cannot understand you.

Thus, you retreat in yourself. It is a very dangerous condition because the others do not know that you need help. However, you are afraid to reveal your emotions to the society because you think that people will treat you as a social outcast. You understand your otherness and try to hide it under a mask of normality.

However, pretending to be someone will not help you to live a normal life. Many people feel the same in some extend. The second reason is when society makes a person to be an alien and exclude him/her. People do not even want to help in this case because they are not eager to understand someone who is different.

People are proud to announce that everyone is unique, that's why the society should appreciate each one's individuality and personal opinion.

However, these are empty words when it goes about otherness. But there is still a way out of this situation. People should learn empathy. Gines (2003) emphasizes that "Empathy dissolves alienation. The person feels that he is no longer an isolate because someone is able to understand him." (p. 372). Thus, empathy is a real art that people should master to help to bring piece to this world.
