

A Review of Essays on Philosophy and Economic Methodology by Daniel M. Hausman, published by Cambridge University Press 1992, ISBN 0-521-41740-6.

Economic Journal, 1994

This book represents a collection seventeen essays written from 1980 to 1992 by an American philosopher of Economics.

The essays are prefaced by a brief introduction which summarises their themes. The introduction also tells how Hausman came to be involved in the philosophy of economics and how, with perfect timing, he entered the field in 1976 when the great wave of contemporary interest in the philosophy of economics was just beginning. In the ensuing years, the subject has become the province of a well-organised academic discipline.

The essays are divided into four sections. Part I, Methodology and Appraisal, comprises eight essays. These are concerned mainly with the issue of whether or not economics is a distinct science which requires a methodology different from that of the exact sciences. Attention is also focussed on the proposition, of Karl Popper and Milton Friedman, that the acceptability of an economic theory derives mainly, if not solely, from its predictive success. At least, the simplistic version of this proposition is rejected.

The essays of Part II, Causality in Economics, discuss the role of the concept of causality in economic theory. Hausman argues in favour of the notion of "causal realism"; and he is opposed to the idea that causality is only a relationship within the realm of conceptual objects.

Part III, Cases and Puzzles, represents a small collection oddments, each of which addresses a particular problem of economics and which together should serve to illustrate Hausman's general philosophical perspective.

Part IV, Postscripts, which is brief, contains two pieces which represent a manifesto for the philosophy of economics. Here the essential credo is that the philosophy of science is itself an empirical science which should aim to study what scientists actually do. This, it is declared, contrasts with the traditional approach which aimed to establish epistemological precepts.

Hausman is a post-modernist philosopher. That is to say, he eschews radical positivism in favour of a careful revisionism which amends the exaggerations and makes good the lacunas of the pristine doctrine. The consequence is that, whereas it is both balanced and moderate, his philosophy is particularly anodyne and it has no cutting edge. Even some metaphysics is allowed to creep into the philosophy under the disguise of common sense.

A good example of Hausman's tendencies is provided by his central essay on causal relations in economics. Here he insists that a distinction should be maintained between the mathematical structure of an equation system and the causal

Early Mathematical Economics James P. Henderson, 1996 Convinced that Ricardian concept of political economy dominant among his contemporaries was based on unscientific doctrines and dubious moral conclusions William Whewell and his followers sought to transform scientific knowledge and to reform British education by applying mathematics to economics James P Henderson's comprehensive study argues that Whewell developed a strategy to challenge the growing dominance of the Ricardian paradigm by highlighting the errors in its deductive reasoning Whewell's views on scientific methodology moral philosophy and educational doctrine influenced several generations of prominent mathematical economists including Edward Rogers Col T Perronet Thompson John Edward Tozer Sir John William Lubbock and Dionysius Lardner Along with Richard Jones Whewell was instrumental in developing an inductive political economy based upon careful historical and statistical research This study of Whewell's contributions to mathematical economics is important reading for students and scholars of economics and political economy

Essays on the Historicity of Capital Alain Herscovici, 2019-04-15 The methodological and epistemological problem this book studies is related to the heterogeneity of capital Capitals are heterogeneous through time and space at the same time various heterogeneous capitals must be aggregated as shown by Ricardo and Keynes On the other hand the value of some quantity of aggregate capital changes over time as demonstrated by Ricardo Keynes and Stiglitz For this purpose this book considers Ricardo Keynes and Stiglitz For each author capital is heterogeneous Ricardo from his labor theory Keynes from the change in expectations in regard to the return of such capital and Stiglitz from the divergences between the different groups expectations Ricardo was the first author who explained why the value of capital cannot be determined independently from distribution variables and consequently why such value changes when distribution variables change this mechanism was deepened by Sraffa and the neo Ricardian school Keynes with the concept of supply price of capital explains why such value moves in regard to long term expectations Finally Stiglitz's analysis is a complementary approach in regard to Keynes's insofar as he details the mechanism of speculation observed by Keynes from asymmetries of information Keynes and Stiglitz's approaches allow complement Ricardo's analysis insofar expectations are absent from Ricardo's framework This book argues that epistemological choices allow going beyond the traditional opposition between neo Ricardian and post Keynesian approaches introducing path dependence mechanisms and an expectational dimension From the moment that capital is not a constant value over time and space it is not possible anymore to consider a well behaved production function which this book argues implies refuting all the neoclassical framework from the stability of the macroeconomic equilibrium and the Marshallian market equilibrium to the convergence towards the steady state
