The Communist Party of Great Britain Since 1920 J. Eaden,D. Renton,2002-05-10 A new single volume history of the Communist Party of Great Britain examining the party from its foundations in 1920 to its demise in the early 1990s Drawing on original research and a reading of specialist texts the authors analyze the rise and fall of the party and evaluate its role on the left of British politics Whilst sympathetic to the ideals and commitment of many British communist activists the book is sharply critical of much of the actual practice of the party

Labour and the Free Churches, 1918-1939 Peter Catterall,2016-10-06 Did the Labour Party in Morgan Phillips famous phrase owe more to Methodism than Marx Were the founding fathers of the party nurtured in the chapels of Nonconformity and shaped by their emphases on liberty conscience and the value of every human being in the eyes of God How did the Free Churches traditionally allied to the Liberal Party react to the growing importance of the Labour Party between the wars This book addresses these questions at a range of levels including organisation rhetoric policies and ideals and electoral politics It is shown that the distinctive religious setting in which Labour emerged indeed helps to explain the differences between it and more Marxist counterparts on the Continent and that this setting continued to influence Labour approaches towards welfare nationalisation and industrial relations between the wars In the process Labour also adopted some of the righteousness of tone of the Free Churches This setting was however changing Dropping their traditional suspicion of the State Nonconformists instead increasingly invested it with religious values helping to turn it through its growing welfare functions into the provider of practical Christianity This nationalisation of religion continues to shape British attitudes to the welfare state as well as imposing narrowly utilitarian and material tests of relevance upon the churches and other social institutions The elevation of the State was not however intended as an end in itself What mattered were the social and individual outcomes Socialism for those Free Churchmen and women who helped to shape Labour in the early twentieth century was about improving society as much as systems

British Propaganda and News Media in the Cold War John Jenks, 2006-04-19 This is a study of the British state's generation suppression and manipulation of news to further foreign policy goals during the early Cold War Bribing editors blackballing unreliable journalists creating instant media experts through provision of carefully edited inside information and exploiting the global media system to plant propaganda disguised as news around the world these were all methods used by the British to try to convince the international public of Soviet deceit and criminality and thus gain support for anti Soviet policies at home and abroad Britain's shaky international position heightened the importance of propaganda The Soviets and Americans were investing heavily in propaganda to win the hearts and minds of the world and substitute for increasingly unthinkable nuclear war The British exploited and enhanced their media power and propaganda expertise to keep up with the superpowers and preserve their own global influence at a time when British economic political and military power was sharply declining This activity directly influenced domestic media relations as officials used British media to launder foreign bound propaganda and to create the desired images of British public opinion for foreign audiences By the early 1950s censorship waned but covert propaganda had become addictive The endless tension of the Cold War normalized what had previously been abnormal state involvement in the media and led it to use similar tools against Egyptian nationalists Irish republicans and British leftists Much more recently official manipulation of news about Iraq indicates that a behind the scenes examination of state propaganda's earlier days is highly relevant John Jenks draws heavily on recently declassified archival material for this book especially files of the Foreign Office's anti Communist Information Research Department IRD propaganda agency and the papers of key media organisations journalists politicians and officials Readers will therefore gain a greater understanding of the depth of the state's power with the media at a time when concerns about propaganda and media manipulation are once again at the fore

Staerck, 2002-12-13 Britain and the Cold War 1945 1964 offers new perspectives on ways in which Britain fought the Cold War and illuminates key areas of the policy formulation process It argues that in many ways Britain and the United States perceived and handled the threat posed by the Communist bloc in similar terms nevertheless Britain's continuing global commitments post war economic problems and domestic considerations obliged her on occasion to tackle the threat rather differently

Peace and Power in Cold War Britain Christopher R. Hill, 2018-08-09 Peace and Power in Cold War Britain explores the ban the bomb and anti Vietnam War movements from the perspective of media history focusing in particular on the relationship between radicalism and the rise of television In doing so it addresses two questions both of which seem to recur with each major breakthrough in communications technology what do advances in communications media mean for democratic participation in politics and how do distinctive types of media condition the very nature of that participation itself

In answering these the book views the ban the bomb and anti Vietnam War movements in relation to communication power and media discourse It highlights how these movements intersected with parts of public life that were being transformed by television themselves shaping struggles for social change among activists and public intellectuals on the streets in the Labour Party and in the law courts The significance of this relationship between media and movements was complex and wide ranging Christopher R Hill demonstrates that it contributed to the enrichment of democracy in Cold War Britain with radicals serving to innovate and pioneer creative forms of political expression from both in and outside of media organisations However the movements increasingly succumbed to news coverage and values that revolved around human interest and violence feeding into the revolutionary spectacle of 1968 and the turn towards identity politics
