Walraven, 2011-05-18 When four fun loving Southern ladies hit the road to attend a teaching conference in Savannah Georgia they hope that the week will be one to remember It turns out they're right but not for the reasons they all imagine In their lives most things they face are mundanewhat to make for lunch how to make the kids pay attention in class and how to work with the school's budget committee They all jumped at the chance to get away For Debra Ashley Brianna and Mary Sue this is a working vacation one where they'll all learn a little and laugh a lot It's a chance to live the good life for a few days They all love the luxury of their conference hotel especially the view So when one of them suggests an evening drive across that spectacular bridge they admire from their rooms they hit the road again But these teachers have missed the lesson about some young men climbing Everest or sailing solo into polar seas isn't the biggest risk in the world. Instead it is venturing alone into the deepest urban jungle where human nature is the dangerous, incomprehensible and sometimes wildly uplifting force that tests not only your ability to survive but also your own humanity. One cold November day Shaughnessy Bishop Stall heads out on just such a quest. He packs up a new tent, some clothes, his notebooks and a pen and goes to live in Tent City, twenty-seven lawless acres where the largest hobo town on the continent squats in the scandalized shadow of Canada's largest city. The rules he sets for himself are simple: no access to money, family or friends except what he can find from that day on. He'll do whatever people in Tent City do to get by: be whatever bum, wino, beggar, hustler, criminal, junkie or con man he chooses to be on any given day. When he arrives he finds a dump full of the castaways of the last millennium: human and otherwise. On the edge of the world yet somehow smack in the middle of it all, fugitives, drug addicts, prostitutes, dealers and ex-cons have created an anarchic society where the rules are made up nightly and your life depends on knowing them. Not only does Bishop Stall manage to survive until the bulldozers come but against all odds his own heart and spirit slowly mend. An astonishing account of birth, suicide, brawls, binges, tears, crazed laughter, good and bad intentions, fiendish charity and the sudden eloquence and generosity of broken souls. Down to This is Bishop Stall's iridescent love song to a lost city like no other. From the Hardcover edition.
