Fiction and the Sixth Mass Extinction Jonathan Elmore, 2020-04-01 Fiction and the Sixth Mass Extinction is one of the first works to focus specifically on fiction's engagements with human driven extinction Drawing together a diverse group of scholars and approaches this volume pairs established voices in the field with emerging scholars and traditionally recognized climate fiction cli fi with texts and media typically not associated with Anthropocene fictions The result is a volume that both engages with and furthers existing work on Anthropocene fiction as well as laying groundwork for the budding subfield of extinction fiction This volume takes up the collective insistence on the centrality of story to extinction studies In various and disparate ways each chapter engages with the stories we tell about extinction about the extinction of animal and plant life and about the extinction of human life itself Answering the call to action of extinction studies these chapters explore what kinds of humanity caused this event and what kinds may live through it what cultural assumptions and values led to this event and which ones could lead out of it what relationships between human life and this planet allowed the sixth mass extinction and what alternative relationships could be possible

The Unnameable Monster in Literature and Film Maria Beville,2013-10-30 This book visits the Thing in its various manifestations as an unnameable monster in literature and film reinforcing the idea that the very essence of the monster is its excess and its indeterminacy Tied primarily to the artistic modes of the gothic science fiction and horror the unnameable monster retains a persistent presence in literary forms as a reminder of the sublime object that exceeds our worst fears Beville examines various representations of this elusive monster and argues that we must look at the monster rather than through it at ourselves As such this book responds to the obsessive manner in which the monsters of literature and culture are managed in processes of classification and in claims that they serve a social function by embodying all that is horrible in the human imagination The book primarily considers literature from the Romantic period to the present and film that leans toward postmodernism Incorporating disciplines such as cultural theory film theory literary criticism and continental philosophy it focuses on that most difficult but interesting quality of the monster its unnameability in order to transform and accelerate current readings of not only the monsters of literature and film but also those that are the focus of contemporary theoretical discussion
