From Disaster Response To Risk Management Australias National Drought Policy:

From Disaster Response to Risk Management Linda C. Botterill, Donald A. Wilhite, 2005-06-15 In 1992 Australia's Commonwealth and State governments announced the introduction of a National Drought Policy adopting an innovative risk management approach which received broad support from Australia's major political parties and the policy community. This trail blazing attempt and the experiences with the development and implementation of this policy over the past decade have intrigued the international scientific and policy communities. The present book comprises an academically focused collection of papers which the Editors hope will provide others moving in a similar direction with the benefit of experience. The work highlights the successes and challenges of a move from disaster to risk management in responding to drought. As such it will be a valuable and useful addition to the international literature on drought preparedness and response.

From Disaster Response to Risk Management Linda C. Botterill, Donald A. Wilhite, 2005-02-17 An academically focused collection of papers highlighting the successes and challenges of a move from disaster to risk management in responding to drought. The book passes on the experiences gained from Australia's trail blazing new policy introduced in 1992.

Drought: Research and Science-Policy Interfacing Joaquin Andreu, Abel Solera, Javier Paredes-Arquiola, David Haro-Monteagudo, Henny van Lanen, 2015-02-12 Droughts occur in arid and semi arid areas of the world but also in humid areas and can develop over short periods flash drought or longer periods seasons decades. Even though progress has been made it remains difficult to adequately characterize monitor forecast and manage droughts due to their multi faceted nature. Usually drought does

Wheat Marketing in Transition Linda Courtenay Botterill, 2012-01-05 This detailed account tells the background story of a privatised monopoly whose sharp practices embroiled a national government in scandal and shocked a nation that prides itself on the strength of its institutions. AWB Limited the former Australian Wheat Board that in the 1990s was sold into the private sector paid more than US$200m in kickbacks to the pariah regime of Saddam Hussein in Iraq exploiting the provisions of the United Nations Oil for Food program by inflating the price of the wheat it sent there to disguise the pay offs that secured the contracts. The ensuing uproar threatened the careers of key cabinet ministers in the Howard government and contributed to the rise and subsequent election victory of the Australian Labor Party's Kevin Rudd.

Share Judith Brett, 2015-01-29 Once the country believed itself to be the true face of Australia sunburnt men and capable women raising crops and children enduring isolation and a fickle environment carrying the nation on their sturdy backs For almost 200 years after white settlement began city Australia needed the country to feed it to earn its export income to fill the empty land to provide it with distinctive images of the nation being built in the great south land But Australia no longer rides on the sheep's back and since the 1980s when economic rationalism became the new creed the country has felt abandoned its contribution to the nation dismissed its historic purpose forgotten In Fair Share Judith Brett argues that our federation was built on the idea of a big country and a fair share no matter where one lived We also looked to the bush for our legends and we still look to it for our food These are not things we can just abandon In late 2010 with the country independents deciding who would form federal government it seemed that rural and regional Australia's time had come again But as Murray Darling water reform shows the politics of dependence are complicated The question remains what will be the fate of the country in an era of user pays water cutbacks climate change droughts and flooding rains What are the prospects for a new compact between country and city in Australia in the twenty first century Once the problems of the country were problems for the country as a whole But then government stepped back The problems of the country were seen as unfortunate for those affected but not likely to have much impact on the rest of Australia The agents of neoliberalism cut the country loose from the city and left it to fend for itself Judith Brett Fair Share

Water Management and Climate Change Cecilia Tortajada, Asit Biswas, Avinash Tyagi, 2016-04-14 To plan successfully and manage the increased uncertainties posed by likely future climate change knowledge needs to advance much more for the water profession beyond what it is now available Meeting these challenges does not depend exclusively on advances in climatological hydrologic models Policies for adaptation and strategies for mitigation measures have to be formulated on the basis of what are likely to be the potential impacts These will have to be regularly fine tuned and implemented according to changing needs and as more reliable knowledge and data become available Even more challenging will be the politics of policy making and implementation which will require a quantum leap from current policy making and implementation processes One can even say that in addition to the development of more reliable models the politics of climate change and water management remains one of the greatest uncertainties for the water profession This book addresses water management practices and how these should and could be modified to cope with climatic and other related uncertainties over the next two to three decades the types of strategies and good practices that may be available or have to be developed to cope with the current and expected uncertainties in relation to climate change and the types of knowledge information and technological developments needed to incorporate possible future climate change impacts within the framework of water resources management Decision making in the water sector under changing climate and related uncertainties and societal water security under altering and fluctuating climate are also discussed Several case studies are included from several basins cities regions and countries in both developed and non developing countries This book was published as a special issue of the International Journal of Water Resources Development

Steering Sustainability in an Urbanising World Anitra Nelson, 2016-04-01 Sustainability has become the key challenge for urban planners housing and infrastructure policy makers Citizens are increasingly encouraged to live more compactly in denser urban developments to use less water and other natural resources and to choose public transport While councils government agencies and private business invest in a broad range of promotions offering discounts on sustainable products and services uptake has been slow and the impacts marginal at a time when environmental stresses suggest that we must act fast This book examines this pressing problem in a holistic way discussing broad scale sustainability policies and programmes for achieving sustainable urban futures It brings together academics and practitioners to analyze the complexity and interdependence of principles models processes and practices of sustainability in a range of integrated sectors as well as the establishment and maintenance of sustainable physical infrastructure in cities Running Out? Ruth A.
