poetry constantly reminds its readers of the important problems of life poverty hatred war yes these of course but also love respect how ordinary everyday things can be invested with a life enhancing sensibility if viewed aright Her diction is plain her style taut yet there is space within her poems for the reader to move around and explore deeper aspects than perhaps a first reading reveals for hints of wit and irony enliven with a quiet rhetoric which leaves a feeling in the heart rather than an image in the reason Leah Fritz's poetry always seems to celebrate life Patricia Oxley Acumen Arun Deep's Self-Help To

Curtis now forty five shares his story with fellow travelers on the Auto Train The sixth child of seven born into poor white trash today he was ecstatic The weekend was here at last bringing with it the cool crispness of fall Bobby Lee and his friends a crew of six local boys were off for an overnighter into the Woodland Forest destination the Old Mansion Though most of their young lives had been spent exploring the forest up to now they had failed to find and lay claim to the aged red brick relic This trip was going to be different Bobby felt it Their leader Timmy was thirteen and canny beyond his years he and his band were determined So off they went hiking a well used dusty trail slipping into the woods and out onto the Gravel Pit It made for a perfect stepping off point to any adventure Almost twelve hours later finally they found it Once a beautiful proud edifice it was now sad and abandoned most of it burned down its proud giant white columns reduced to mere rings lined up in front As night fell and the fire was lit their quiet was suddenly violated by the harsh clamor of several mini bikes and the drunken shouts of teenage riders The boys were under attack Witnesses later that night to what they all would realize was a terrible accident Timmy commanded his guys to remain quiet and hidden among the trees Much younger than the invaders with only one gun and a cross bow between them they settled in just out of fire light range It would be a long night
