McNeill,2013-10-30 Criminological and penological scholarship has in recent years explored how and why institutions and systems of punishment change and how and why these changes differ in different contexts Important though these analyses are this book focuses not so much on the changing nature of institutions and systems but rather the changing nature of penal practice and practitioners Bringing together leading researchers from around the world this collection unites studies that aim to describe and critically analyse penal practice with studies that investigate its effectiveness and prescribe its future development Reversing penology's usual preoccupation with the prison the book focuses mainly on penal practice in the community i.e. on probation parole offender supervision and community corrections The first part of the book focuses on understanding practice and practitioners exploring how changing social cultural political and organisational contexts influence practice and how training development professional socialisation and other factors influence practitioners The second part is concerned with how practitioners can be best supported to develop the skills and approaches that seem most likely to generate positive impacts It contains accounts of new practice models and approaches as well as reports of research projects seeking both to discover and to encourage effective practices This book explores internationally significant and cutting edge theoretical and empirical work on the cultures practices roles and impacts of frontline practitioners in delivering penal sanctions As such it will be of interest to researchers in criminology social work and social policy as well as correctional policy makers and those involved in community supervision

King,2013-10-01 Moving away from criminal behaviour can be fraught with difficulties Often it can involve leaving behind old habits customs and even friends while at the same time adopting a new way of life How do individuals go about making a decision to give up crime How do they plan to sustain this decision And in what ways does probation help This book explores these questions Based on in depth interviews with a group of men under probation supervision Sam King investigates the factors associated with making a decision to desist from crime The book examines strategies for desistance and explores the factors that individuals consider when they are thinking about how they will desist In doing so the book sheds new light on existing understandings of desistance from crime and helps to develop our understandings of the role that individuals play in constructing their own desistance journeys This book also highlights the role of probation in this process offering a timely and critical review of the nature of probation under the New Labour government in the UK between 1997 2010 The findings indicate that we should allow Probation Officers greater autonomy and discretion within their roles and that we should free them from the bureaucracy of risk assessment and targets Moreover the book warns against the potential fragmentation of community supervision As such the book will be of interest to criminology students researchers academics policymakers and practitioners particularly those who work with ex offenders in the community
