On Apologising in Negative and Positive Politeness Cultures Eva Ogiermann, 2009-10-28 This book investigates how speakers of English Polish and Russian deal with offensive situations It reveals culture specific perceptions of what counts as an apology and what constitutes politeness It offers a critical discussion of Brown and Levinson's theory and provides counterevidence to the correlation between indirectness and politeness underlying their theory Their theory is applied to two languages that rely less heavily on indirectness in conveying politeness than does English and to a speech act that does not become more polite through indirectness An analysis of the face considerations involved in apologising shows that in contrast to disarming apologies remedial apologies are mainly directed towards positive face needs which are crucial for the restoration of social equilibrium and maintenance of relationships The data show that while English apologies are characterised by a relatively strong focus on both interlocutors negative face Polish apologies display a particular concern for positive face For Russian speakers in contrast apologies seem to involve a lower degree of face threat than they do in the other two languages
