Insect Populations In theory and in practice Jack P. Dempster,Ian F.G. McLean,2012-12-06 Insects are by far the largest group of animals on Earth with over a million described species and they occupy a wide range of ecological niches they may be herbivores predators parasites or decomposers Some are of particular economic importance as pests of agriculture and forestry as vectors of animal and human disease or as species of interest to wildlife conservation Thus an understanding of the processes determining their numbers is of considerable practical value Entomologists have played a leading role in developing a theoretical basis to Population Ecology but we still do not have adequate experimental and observational proof for many of the theoretical ideas that have been proposed As a result the subject has been beset with arguments for more than 50 years This volume attempts to reconcile some of these controversies while also reviewing the current state of our knowledge The editors have drawn together an international list of contributors whose views reflect a range of opinions on how natural populations are stabilised They have succeeded in producing a book that both covers the main alternative views in population theory and contains some of the best recent field studies of insect populations This Royal Entomological Society Symposium volume will be of great interest to all entomologists and ecologists particularly those who wish to know more about Population Dynamics      Practical Conservation Biology David Lindenmayer, Mark A. exceptions to the rule explanations major theories and field and experimental tests The following chapter plumbs the depth of time including the nature of the fossil record broad timescale diversity patterns ecosystem changes during mass extinctions and glaciations and their influence on species richness Chapters 3 and 4 consider hotspots and local scale patterns in species richness while Chapter 5 looks at the limitations and uncertainties on current estimates of richness the last frontiers of species diversity and the process of identifying new life forms The last three chapters cover humans and extinctions in history and prehistory current habitat and global change including the greenhouse effect and the race to preserve what we still have including parks gene banks and laws Biogeography C. Conservation Biogeography Richard J. Ladle, Robert J. Whittaker, 2011-01-11 CONSERVATION BIOGEOGRAPHY The Earth's ecosystems are in the midst of an unprecedented period of change as a result of human action Many habitats have been completely destroyed or divided into tiny fragments others have been transformed through the introduction of new species or the extinction of native plants and animals while anthropogenic climate change now threatens to completely redraw the geographic map of life on this planet The urgent need to understand and prescribe solutions to this complicated and interlinked set of pressing conservation issues has led to the transformation of the venerable academic discipline of biogeography the study of the geographic distribution of animals and plants The newly emerged sub discipline of conservation biogeography uses the conceptual tools and methods of biogeography to address real world conservation problems and to provide predictions about the fate of key species and ecosystems over the next century This book provides the first comprehensive review of the field in a series of closely interlinked chapters addressing the central issues within this exciting and important subject Parasite Biodiversity Robert Poulin, Serge Morand, 2014-05-27 This comprehensive groundbreaking book on the biodiversity of parasites offers a clear and accessible explanation of how parasite biodiversity provides insight into the history and biogeography of other organisms the structure of ecosystems and the processes that lead to the diversification of life World Atlas of Biodiversity Brian Groombridge, Martin Jenkins, 2002 Global biological diversity ecosystem diversity
