Economic And Social Effects Of Multinational Enterprises In Export Processing Zones:

Economic and Social Effects of Multinational Enterprises in Export Processing Zones Centre on Transnational Corporations (United Nations),1988 One of the most remarkable structural changes which took place in the world economy in the 1970s and the first half of the 1980s is undoubtedly the growth of export processing zones EPZs in the developing countries and areas employment in these zones grew from around 50 000 in 1970 to over 1 3 million by 1986 Judging from the current plans for new EPZs in over a dozen countries and the expansion plans for existing zones it would seem that employment in EPZs could continue to grow rapidly in the next few years The phenomenon of EPZs and the role of multinational enterprises in them have been the subject of heated debate This monograph sheds light on the multinationals contribution to employment generation export earnings technology transfer and the development of linkages with the local economy These are measured against the initial cost of the incentive package for establishing and maintaining the zones Questions related to working conditions and labour relations are also highlighted The book confronts a number of widely held assumptions with the available facts and figures and points to the possible evolution of EPZs in the economies of newly industrializing countries It envisages the emergence of the export processing country and a more open and competitive approach to industrial development Upgrading and Innovation in East Asia Akifumi Kuchiki, Masatsugu Tsuji, 2011-01-01 This lucid and informative book analyzes the problems of clusters in transition through studies of agglomerations at different stages of development in various East Asian countries. The contributors reconsider industrial cluster policy within a more dynamic and long term framework and explore how regional transformations can bring new insights to the theory of agglomeration and innovation. By identifying the factors and policies to promote upgrading, the authors establish the theoretical and policy basis for transforming industrial clusters from production oriented to innovation oriented agglomerations. They also study the important structural changes in the region such as FTAs and the role of the WTO and the consequent effects on clusters. Researchers and students of Asian economics, industrial clusters and innovation will find this incisive book invaluable. It will also prove to be a compelling read for policymakers in developing countries or international development organizations.

Future Visions of Urban Public Housing (Routledge Revivals) Wolfgang F. E. Preiser, David P. Varady, Francis P. Russell, 2017-08-03 First published in 1994, this book brings together the papers presented at the International Forum on Future Visions of Urban Public Housing held on November 17-20, 1994, in Cincinnati, Ohio. Participants included public housing officials, academics, practitioners, and public housing residents who came together to debate, compare, and analyze practices and issues in urban and public housing in industrialized nations. The 55 collected papers address the following key topics: public housing policy, comprehensive neighbourhood planning for public housing, public housing in the urban design context, quality of design standards and guidelines for public housing, resident participation and enhanced self-sufficiency in public housing, public housing alternatives, revitalising and rehabilitating public housing, the Elderly, Children, and special populations in public housing. The findings suggest new directions for policy and agendas for action.

At the Crossroads of Development Behar, Cuzán, 2021-11-01 The 10 articles assembled in this volume examine old problems and new opportunities in development that are associated with trade, communication, population distribution, and migration, culture, and institutions. They explore possibilities for and obstacles to technological and institutional transfers between developed and developing societies at a time when capitalism and democracy appear triumphant. Points of convergence, parallel processes, and equivalences in social problems and potential solutions across levels of development are noted. They point out that the hierarchy of the world economic system and indigenous cultures militate against the homogenization of the globe along Western lines.

Second Tier Cities Ann R. Markusen, Yong-Sook Lee, Sean DiGiovanna, 1999 Over the past thirty years, transnational investment, trade, and government policies have encouraged the decentralization of national economies, disrupting traditional patterns of urban and regional growth. Many smaller cities, such as Seattle, Washington; Campinas, Brazil; Oita, Japan; and Kumi, Korea, have grown markedly faster than the largest metropolises. Dubbed here second tier cities, they are home to specialized industrial complexes that have taken root, provided significant job growth, and attracted mobile capital.

and labor The culmination of an ambitious five year fourteen city research project conducted by an international team of economics and geographers Second Tier Cities examines the potential of these new regions to balance uneven regional development create good stable jobs and moderate hyper urbanization Comparing across national borders the contributors describe four types of second tier cities Marshallian industrial districts hub and spoke cities satellite platforms and government anchored complexes They find that both industrial and regional policies have been important contributors to the rise of second tier cities though the former often trump the latter Lessons for local national and international policymakers are drawn The authors are critical of devolution and argue that it must be accompanied by strong labor and environmental standards and mechanisms to overcome differential regional resource endowments democratic demands and human rights in complex multifaceted and paradoxical ways Through a case study looking at Malaysia's Multimedia Super Corridor a high tech national development plan and foreign direct investment scheme he examines how the transnational leaders of the high tech economy along with the Malaysian political elite react when human rights problems threaten to derail commercial plans
