The German Economy During the Nineteenth Century Toni Pierenkemper,Richard H. Tilly,2004 In the 19th Century economic growth was accompanied by large scale structural change known as industrialization which fundamentally affected western societies Even though industrialization is on the wane in some advanced economies and we are experiencing substantial structural changes again the causes and consequences of these changes are inextricably linked with earlier industrialization This means that understanding 19th Century industrialization helps us understand problems of contemporary economic growth There is no recent study on economic developments in 19th Century Germany So this concise volume written specifically with students of German and economic history in mind will prove to be most valuable not least because of its wealth of statistical data Causal Factors in American Economic Growth in the Nineteenth Century Peter Temin,1983

Typology of Industrialization Processes in the Nineteenth Century S. Pollard,2013-09-27 This title considers the main similarities and differences in the industrialization processes of the major economies Typology of Industrialization Processes in the Nineteenth Century Sidney Pollard,2001 This title considers the main similarities and differences in the industrialization processes of the major economies Nutrition and Economic Development in the Eighteenth-Century Habsburg Monarchy John Komlos,2014-07-14 John Komlos examines the industrial expansion of Austria from a fresh viewpoint and develops a new model for the industrial revolution By integrating recent advances in the study of human biology and nutrition as they relate to physical stature population growth and levels of economic development he reveals an intense Malthusian crisis in the Habsburg lands during the second half of the eighteenth century At that time food shortages brought about by the accelerated population growth of the 1730s forced the government to adopt a reform program that opened the way for the beginning of the industrial revolution in Austria and in the Czech Crownlands. Comparing this Austrian model of economic growth to the industrial revolution in Britain, Komlos argues that the model is general enough to explain demographic and economic growth elsewhere in Europe despite obvious regional differences. The main feature of the model is the interplay between a persistent even if small tendency to accumulate capital and a population with an underlying tendency to grow in numbers while remaining subject to Malthusian checks, particularly a limited availability of food. According to Komlos, modern economic growth in Europe began when the food constraint was finally lifted. An Economic History of Nineteenth-Century Europe Ivan Berend, 2012-11-15. Why did some countries and regions of Europe reach high levels of economic advancement in the nineteenth century while others were left behind? This new transnational survey of the continent's economic development highlights the role of regional differences in shaping each country's economic path and outcome. Presenting a clear and cogent explanation of the historical causes of advancement and backwardness, Ivan Berend integrates social, political, institutional, and cultural factors as well as engaging in debates about the relative roles of knowledge, the state, and institutions. Featuring boxed essays on key personalities including Adam Smith, Friedrich List, Gustave Eiffel, and the Krupp family, as well as brief histories of innovations such as the steam engine, vaccinations, and the cooperative system, the book helps to explain the theories and macroeconomic trends that dominated the century and their impact on the subsequent development of the European economy right up to the present day.

Typology of Industrialization Processes in the Nineteenth Century A. Joseph Pollard, 2020-02-13. The industrial revolution in Great Britain was the first example of the transition to a modern industrial economy. Certain features of this transition were later copied and modified by other countries undergoing the same process. This book considers the main similarities and differences in the process of industrialization, grouping the main countries.
