Common forms of mental engagement listed by participants were hobbies, studies, community affairs, reading, and writing, listening to radio, and watching television. In this sample, retirement was perceived as a significant loss, or stress, even though it was voluntary in the majority of cases. The authors believe that mental engagement fills the void of lost work or health. Emotional engagements had a positive association with well-being, but did not moderate losses. The latter was attributed to the gender of the sample, as men tend to place less importance on relationships and emotional support.
Strengths	As in similar studies, the authors used a multi-dimensional approach to measure well-being in this sample. The article also demonstrated the positive effects of mental engagement, which supports the findings of
