Georgia Rebecca Steffoff, 2008 Examines the 1972 Supreme Court case Furman v Georgia in regard to the death penalty Furman V. Georgia Greg Roensch, 2009 In the summer of 1967 William Henry Furman broke into a house in Savannah Georgia He carried a pistol that night in case he ran into trouble but he never intended to fire the gun Instead his plan was simply to rob the house as quickly and quietly as possible without running into anyone Unfortunately things didn't go as planned for Furman There are different accounts of what happened next but one thing is known for sure Before Furman fled the house his gun went off and killed a man William Furman was convicted of murder and sentenced to die in the electric chair This chain of events provides the background for the Supreme Court's landmark death penalty ruling in Furman v Georgia This new title in the celebrated Great Supreme Court Decisions series recounts the story behind one of the most controversial cases ever to hit the nation's highest court The Death Penalty D. J. Herda, 2016-12-15 The death penalty is surely one of the most highly contentious points the Supreme Court has had to weigh in on Whether you believe in the death penalty or not the Furman v Georgia case was groundbreaking in its decision to stay Furman's execution because it was arbitrary and very possibly racially motivated Though it did not stop capital punishment the case changed the way states had to weigh their decisions Also included are questions to consider primary source documents and a chronology of the case Furman V. Georgia D. J. Why not replied the pilot The San Francisco steamer does not start from Yokohama She stops there and at Nagasaki but her port of departure is Shanghai You are certain of what you are saying Certain And when does the steamer leave Shanghai On the 11th at seven o'clock in the evening We have then four days before us Four days that is ninety six hours and with an average of eight knots an hour if we have good luck if the wind keeps to the southeast if the sea is calm we can make the eight hundred miles which separate us from Shanghai And you can leave in an hour time enough to buy my provisions and hoist sail It is a bargain you are the master of the boat Yes John Bunsby master of the Tankadere Do you wish some earnest money If it does not inconvenience
