The Economics of Technological Change and Employment in the Digital Machine Age Falk Urban, 2015-12-22 Master's Thesis from the year 2015 in the subject Economics Other grade 1.0 University of Paderborn language English abstract Technology as a Matter of Economic Interest A timeliness object of discussion since the first noteworthy appearance of economic literature has always been the construct of technological unemployment. The fear of people being put out of work by some machines really took off during the industrial revolution in the late 18th century owed to the invention of the steam machine which eventually led to the automation of the weaving craft. The economic interest in the relationship between new technology and its social impact is mostly based on the idea of increased productivity. If we consider a production function containing an arbitrary number of input factors then given a certain amount of output profits will decrease if any of those inputs is becoming more expensive. In the course of time before human and property rights were installed this has been most often the factors land and labor. Labor insofar as it depended massively on the ability of keeping people healthy and well nourished and also on the expected life span which was certainly lower centuries ago. The United Kingdom was affected first and severest by the invention of the steam engine. Ulrike Herrmann 2013 explains the necessity of this invention on the scarcity of labor due to the wars and famines plaguing the Europe of that era. This disruptive general purpose technology is the first encounter of employees with massive technological unemployment and the almost obliteration of certain professions i.e. weavers.

Technological Change in the Modern Economy Paul R. Beije, 1998 Technological Change in the Modern Economy presents an authoritative overview of the economics of technological change. Using an empirical foundation it examines the economic causes and effects of technological innovation. It also analyzes the process of innovation itself. The author first provides an introduction to innovation and technical change.

He expands this to include issues such as innovation and economic growth the organization of innovation innovation and competition and the role of government He also discusses new topics such as technological cooperation the spillover effects of research the firm as a learning organization and national systems of innovation These issues are analysed empirically employing theoretical explanations to support case studies on Europe The United States and Japan The book uses an institutional economics approach discussing the role of various actors such as individual inventors research departments of private firms and public research institutes The book will provide an introduction to the economics of innovation for advanced undergraduates and for managers and public administrators involved in innovation It will also be of interest to those studying industrial organization and institutional economics and will be accessible to those from business administration and management science      Technological Change, Economic Development and Space Cristoforo S.

Bertuglia, Manfred M. Fischer, Giorgio Preto, 2012-12-06 The pressures of global competition are affecting regions throughout the world and making it increasingly necessary to understand the complex underlying mechanisms and the potential for innovation offered by new technology Success in economic restructuring depends not only on the technology itself but the professional and entrepreneurial skills available and the support of provided by institutions and information networks The very local nature these phenomena which are critical to the innovative propensity of firms operating within the region introduces an inevitable spatial dimension The time therefore seems ripe to bring together contributions from scholars working in different but related disciplines with the aim of investigating the triangular relationship between technological change economic development and space The present volume offers a compact review of current theoretical developments and valuable insights deriving from recent empirical studies carried out both within Europe and elsewhere All those contributing to this volume are actively involved in research in the field Without their intellectual contribution and willingness to participate in this joint project the book would not have been possible We should like in addition to thank Angela Spence for her capable assistance in coordinating the various stages of preparation of the book as well as her translation work and careful linguistic editing Thanks also go to Paola Stasi for her meticulous copy editing and help in preparing the indices Their work has been invaluable in moulding together in a single volume contributions from so many different sources      Handbook of the Economics of Innovations and Technological Change Paul Stoneman, 1995 This
