Animals as specific objects of obligations under Polish and German law Małgorzata

Lubelska-Sazanów, 2021-01-18 Defining where the needs of contracting parties end and where the mistreatment of animals begins is especially difficult in contract law where protecting animals is not a basic premise. Thus although animal law is a widely discussed topic the position of animals under civil law has not been discussed comprehensively before. The first chapters of the book set the background for subsequent civil law considerations given that the object of a contractual obligation is an animal and the impact this has on the conclusion performance and consequences of non performance of a contract. It constitutes a unique interdisciplinary and comparative work focused mainly on animals in contractual relations e.g. sale donation lease tenancy commission agency safe keeping training contracts

The Burden of Proof in Comparative and International Human Rights Law Juliane Kokott, 2023-12-28 This book explores how courts decide or ought to decide in situations of uncertainty. A Court must always decide the case before it even if the relevant facts remain unclear. The question then arises which party benefits and which party is burdened by that uncertainty. In these cases the Court must apply the rules on the burden of proof or more precisely the burden of persuasion. Their importance for the individual claimant is obvious. The comparison of two domestic systems one based on common law and the other a traditional code based legal order with regard to the issue of burden of proof helps to clarify the terminology and lays the ground for dealing with the burden of proof in international human rights law. Without knowing what can be understood by the term burden of proof under domestic law international lawyers with different domestic law backgrounds are in danger of misunderstanding each other This may lead to obscuring the problems connected with court decisions involving uncertainty The study also deals with uncertainties with regard to legislative general in contrast to adjudicative individual facts and with uncertainties in the framework of predictions in contrast to uncertainties relating to historic facts It attempts to prepare the ground for dealing more consciously and more consistently with problems of uncertainty in international human rights law International courts due to their geographical and cultural distance from the case usually have less access to the underlying facts Nevertheless in order to protect human rights effectively international courts and tribunals cannot always restrict themselves to reviewing the law but may also have to decide on the facts Thus issues relating to decision making on the basis of uncertain facts including the burden of persuasion are even more important in international than in domestic human rights law

Courts, Codes, and Custom Dana Zartner, 2014-04-01 Why is it that some countries comply with international laws while others disregard them Courts Codes and Custom argues that the degree to which states accept and comply with international legal norms is rooted in a country's domestic legal tradition Offering a novel cultural institutional theory to explain this variation Dana Zartner looks specifically at state policy towards international human rights and environmental law A state's legal tradition the cultural and institutional factors that shape attitudes about the law appropriate standards of behavior and the legal process is the key mechanism by which international law becomes recognized accepted and internalized in the domestic legal framework Legal tradition shapes not only perceptions about law but also provides the lens through which policy makers view state interests providing both direct and indirect influence on state policy In the book Zartner disaggregates the concept of legal tradition and examines how the individual cultural and institutional characteristics present within a state's domestic legal tradition facilitate or hinder the internalization of international law and subsequently shape state policy This provides explanation for both the differences in international law recognition across legal traditions as well as the variance among states within legal traditions To test this theory she presents a series of comparative case studies These studies fall under five of the main legal traditions in the world today common law U S and Australia civil law Germany and Turkey Islamic law Egypt and Saudi Arabia mixed traditions India and Kenya and East Asian law China and Japan Zartner addresses a number of different themes including the differences among legal traditions as well as between states within the same tradition the important role that legal culture and history play in shaping contemporary attitudes about law and similarities and differences in state policy towards human rights law versus environmental law
