Weighty Issues Jeffery Sobal, 2017-09-08 Many people consider their weight to be a personal problem when then does body weight become a social problem Until recently the major public concern was whether enough food was consistently available As food systems began to provide ample and stable amounts of food questions about food availability were replaced with concerns about ideal weights and appearance These interests were aggregated into public concerns about defining people as too fat and too thin Social constructionist perspectives can contribute to the understanding of weight problems because they focus attention on how these problems are created maintained and promoted within various social environments While there is much objectivist research concerning weight problems few studies address the socially constructed aspects of fatness and thinness This book however draws from and contributes to social constructionist perspectives The chapters in this volume offer several perspectives that can be used to understand the way society deals with fatness and thinness The contributors consider historical foundations medical models gendered dimensions institutional components and collective perspectives These different perspectives illustrate the multifaceted nature of obesity and eating disorders providing examples of how a variety of social groups construct weight as a social problem

Making Sense of Nature Noel Castree,2013-08-15 We listen to a cacophony of voices instructing us how to think and feel about nature including our own bodies The news media wildlife documentaries science magazines and environmental NGOs are among those clamouring for our attention But are we empowered by all this knowledge or is our dependence on various communities allowing our thoughts sentiments and activities to be unduly governed by others Making Sense of Nature shows that what we call nature is made sense of for us in ways that make it central to social order social change and social dissent By utilising insights and extended examples from anthropology cultural studies human geography philosophy politics sociology science studies this interdisciplinary text asks whether we can better make sense of nature for ourselves and thus participate more meaningfully in momentous decisions about the future of life human and non human on the planet This book shows how nature can be made sense of without presuming its naturalness The challenge is not so much to rid ourselves of the idea of nature and its collateral concepts such as genes but instead we need to be more alert to how why and with what effects ideas about nature get fashioned and deployed in specific situations Among other things the book deals with science and scientists the mass media and journalists ecotourism literature and cinema environmentalists advertising and big business This innovative text contains numerous case studies and examples from daily life to put theory and subject matter into context as well as study tasks a glossary and suggested further reading The case studies cover a range of topics range from forestry in Canada and Guinea to bestiality in Washington State to how human genetics is reported in Western newspapers to participatory science experiments in the UK Making Sense of Nature will empower readers from a wide range of fields across the social sciences humanities and physical sciences

Agenda-setting Dynamics in Canada Stuart Neil Soroka, 2002 Why do public issues like the environment rise and fall in importance over time To what extent can the trends in salience be explained by real world factors To what degree are they the product of interactions between media content public opinion and policymaking This book surveys the development of eight issues in Canada over a decade AIDS crime the debt deficit the environment inflation national unity taxes and unemployment to explore how the salience of issues changes over time and to examine why these changes are important to our understanding of everyday politics Agenda Setting Dynamics in Canada offers one of the first empirical analyses of the interaction of the media the public and policymakers in Canada and more generally makes an important contribution to the study of political communications and policymaking well beyond the Canadian context

Critical Perspectives on PISA as a Means of Global Governance António Teodoro, 2022-03-24 This volume offers a critical examination of the Programme for International Students Assessment PISA focusing on its origins and implementation relationship to other international large scale assessments and its impacts on educational policy and reform at national and cross national levels Using empirical data gathered from a research project carried out by the CeIED at Lusofona University Lisbon the text highlights connections between PISA and emergent issues including the international circulation of big science expertise and policy and identifies its conceptual and methodological limits as a global governance project The volume ultimately provides a novel framework for understanding how OECD priorities are manifested through a regulatory instrument based on Human and Knowledge Capital Theory and so makes a powerful case to search for new humanistic approaches This text will benefit researchers academics and educators with an interest in education policy and politics international and comparative education and the sociology of education more broadly Those interested in the history of education will also benefit from this volume

Communicating Biological Sciences Richard Elliott, 2016-05-23 Recent scandals in the biosciences have highlighted the perils of communicating science leading many observers to ask questions about the pressures on scientists and the media to hype up claims of scientific breakthroughs Journalists science writers and scientists themselves have to report complex and rapidly developing scientific issues to society yet work within conceptual and temporal constraints that shape their communication To date there has been little reflection on the ethical implications of science writing and science communication in an era of rapid change Communicating Biological Sciences discusses the ethics of science communication in light of recent developments in biotechnology and biomedicine It focuses on the role of metaphors in the creation of visions and the framing of scientific advances as well as their impact on patterns of public acceptance and rejection trust and scepticism Its rigorous investigation will appeal not only to science writers and scientists but also to scholars of sociology science and technology studies media and journalism Hearings United States.
