

A sepia-toned photograph of a study desk. In the background, a vintage typewriter sits on the desk. In the foreground, an open book lies flat, with a pair of round-rimmed glasses resting on its right page. A quill pen is positioned near the bottom left of the book. To the right of the book, a small, ornate lamp with a glass chimney is visible. The background is softly blurred, showing what appears to be a window with a view of a lighthouse or tower at night. The overall mood is quiet and scholarly.

cover price 2 25 Hawthorne was paid 10 percent per copy Hawthorne complained that he still struggled financially Editor John L O Sullivan suggested Hawthorne buy back unsold copies of Twice Told Tales so that they could be reissued through a different publisher At the time of this suggestion 1844 there were 600 unsold copies of the book Hawthorne lamented I wish Heaven would make me rich enough to buy the copies for the purpose of burning them After the success of The Scarlet Letter in 1850 Twice Told Tales was reissued with the help of publisher James Thomas Fields In a new preface Hawthorne wrote that the stories may be understood and felt by anybody who will give himself the trouble to read it and will take up the book in a proper mood

The Scarlet Letter (the Classics) Nathaniel Hawthorne, 2011-01-01 Teachers have long understood that grasping the themes of great literature while often times challenging is well within the means of those readers willing to thoughtfully engage the text Furthermore teachers have long understood the value of margin notes as a powerful tool in accomplishing this end Yet despite the collective wisdom of many educators publishers continue to print the classics in a format little conducive to the kind of text grappling that experts recommended In listening to students and educators Gladius Books has heeded the call by publishing a series of the most frequently read classics each printed with extra wide margins for convenient annotations To maximize the value of margin notes the publisher has also included an appendix with helpful note taking suggestions

My unfortunate friend P has lost the thread of his life by the interposition of long intervals of partially disordered reason The past and present are jumbled together in his mind in a manner often productive of curious results and which will be better understood after the perusal of the following letter than from any description that I could give The poor fellow without once stirring from the little whitewashed iron grated room to which he alludes in his first paragraph is nevertheless a great traveller and meets in his wanderings a variety of personages who have long ceased to be visible to any eye save his own In my opinion all this is not so much a delusion as a partly wilful and partly involuntary sport of the imagination to which his disease has imparted such morbid energy that he beholds these spectral scenes and characters with no less distinctness than a play upon the stage and with somewhat more of illusive credence Many of his letters are in my possession some based upon the same vagary as the present one and others upon hypotheses not a whit short of it in absurdity The Vision of the Fountain - Publishing People Series Nathaniel

Hawthorne,2020-10-21 At fifteen I became a resident in a country village more than a hundred miles from home The morning after my arrival a September morning but warm and bright as any in July I rambled into a wood of oaks with a few walnut trees intermixed forming the closest shade above my head The ground was rocky uneven overgrown with bushes and clumps of young saplings and traversed only by cattle paths The track which I chanced to follow led me to a crystal spring with a border of grass as freshly green as on May morning and overshadowed by the limb of a great oak One solitary sunbeam found its way down and played like a goldfish in the water
