Creation K. Elkholm Friedmann, 2014-03-18 First Published in 1992 This is a study of what happened to Kongo society and culture at the turn of the 20th century when the area was penetrated brutally violated and colonized by Europeans This book is the outcome of a project called Society and Culture in Crisis whereby the author found that evolution was a continuous more or less unbroken process only at the global system level whereas repeated rises and falls took place at the local level This study closely looks at the declining development process in the Lower Congo and calls to the effects of colonization on society and culture

The African Burial Ground in New York City Andrea E. Frohne, 2015-10-09 In 1991 archaeologists in lower Manhattan unearthed a stunning discovery Buried for more than 200 years was a communal cemetery containing the remains of up to 20 000 people At roughly 6 6 acres the African Burial Ground is the largest and earliest known burial space of African descendants in North America In the years that followed its discovery citizens and activists fought tirelessly to demand respectful treatment of eighteenth century funerary remains and sacred ancestors After more than a decade of political battle on local and national levels and scientific research at Howard University the remains were eventually reburied on the site in 2003 Capturing the varied perspectives and the emotional tenor of the time Frohne narrates the story of the African Burial Ground and the controversies surrounding urban commemoration She analyzes both its colonial and contemporary representations drawing on colonial era maps prints and land surveys to illuminate the forgotten and hidden visual histories of a mostly enslaved population buried in the African Burial Ground Tracing the history and identity of the area from a forgotten site to a contested and negotiated space Frohne situates the burial ground within the context of late twentieth and early twenty first century race relations in New York City to reveal its enduring presence as a spiritual place

The Age of Intoxication Benjamin Breen, 2019-12-20 Eating the flesh of an Egyptian mummy prevents the plague Distilled poppies reduce melancholy A Turkish drink called coffee increases alertness Tobacco cures cancer Such beliefs circulated in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries an era when the term drug encompassed everything from herbs and spices like nutmeg cinnamon and chamomile to such deadly poisons as lead mercury and arsenic In The Age of Intoxication Benjamin Breen offers a window into a time when drugs were not yet separated into categories illicit and licit recreational and medicinal modern and traditional and there was no barrier between the drug dealer and the pharmacist Focusing on the Portuguese colonies in Brazil and Angola and on the imperial capital of Lisbon Breen examines the process by which novel drugs were located commodified and consumed He then turns his attention to the British Empire arguing that it owed much of its success in this period to its usurpation of the Portuguese drug networks From the sickly sweet tobacco that helped finance the Atlantic slave trade to the cannabis that an East Indies merchant sold to the natural philosopher Robert Hooke in one of the earliest European coffeehouses Breen shows how drugs have been entangled with science and empire from the very beginning Featuring numerous illuminating anecdotes and a cast of characters that includes merchants slaves shamans prophets inquisitors and alchemists The Age of Intoxication rethinks a history of drugs and the early drug trade that has too often been framed as opposites between medicinal and recreational legal and illegal good and evil Breen argues that in order to guide drug policy toward a fairer and more informed course we first need to understand who and what set the global drug trade in motion
