approach emphasizes the role of the entire food chain highlighting different kinds of environmental impacts affecting climate change. On the other side, temperature changes and variations of precipitation patterns together with extreme weather events and water reduction are recognized as predictors for producing less food, decreased food quality, new food safety risks, biodiversity losses, and depletion of resources associated with food production in modified circumstances. Last but not least, these effects introduce new threats known as food security, where some assumptions stress that almost one billion of people are hungry, not receiving enough food as a result of climate changes. As a result, the UN highlights the need for combating climate change and promotes sustainable food consumption and production. Based on the perceived need to promote and disseminate information on climate change related to food system, the Handbook of Climate change across the food supply chain is being produced. The publication compiles information, experiences, practical initiatives, and projects around the subject matter and makes it available to a wide audience. It is expected that the Handbook of Climate change across the food supply chain makes many benefits of climate service clearer and inter alia leads to an increase in the demand for such important services.

Promotes global availability and insight into native West African foods available in Cameroon, Ghana, and Nigeria. Reviews the safety, processing, and health benefits of these foods. Explores both scientific and anecdotal diet-related health claims. Analyzes nutritional components of native plants through valorization trials for global market. Climate change, biodiversity and nutrition nexus Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2021-12-23. Humankind is facing a perfect storm of climate change, biodiversity loss, and multiple forms of malnutrition, stunting, wasting, micronutrient deficiencies, and obesity coexisting in the same country, community, household, and even individual. Challenges from each of these areas are well known and recognized, but what seems to be missing in many development and policy circles is a recognition that food is at the centre of all three of these issues. This paper identifies entry points within agri food systems to improve biodiversity and diets two levers that can be used to enhance nutrition and optimize environmental sustainability while ensuring social equity especially of the most vulnerable people It also presents recommendations for concrete actions by key stakeholders governments academia civil society private sector and development partners to build resilient inclusive and sustainable agri food systems
