The Gods of Mars Edgar Rice Burroughs, 2007-01-01 As I stood upon the bluff before my cottage on that clear cold night in the early part of March 1886 the noble Hudson flowing like the grey and silent spectre of a dead river below me I felt again the strange compelling influence of the mighty god of war my beloved Mars which for ten long and lonesome years I had implored with outstretched arms to carry me back to my lost love Not since that other March night in 1866 when I had stood without that Arizona cave in which my still and lifeless body lay wrapped in the similitude of earthly death had I felt the irresistible attraction of the god of my profession With arms outstretched toward the red eye of the great star I stood praying for a return of that strange power which twice had drawn me through the immensity of space praying as I had prayed on a thousand nights before during the long ten years that I had waited and hoped Suddenly a qualm of nausea swept over me my senses swam my knees gave beneath me and I pitched headlong to the ground upon the very verge of the dizzy bluff Instantly my brain cleared and there swept back across the threshold of my memory the vivid picture of the horrors of that ghostly Arizona cave again as on that far gone night my muscles refused to respond to my will and again as though even here upon the banks of the placid Hudson I could hear the awful moans and rustling of the fearsome thing which had lurked and threatened me from the dark recesses of the cave I made the same mighty and superhuman effort to break the bonds of the strange anaesthesia which held me and again came the sharp click as of the sudden parting of a taut wire and I stood naked and free beside the staring lifeless thing that had so recently pulsed with the warm red life blood of John Carter With scarcely a parting glance I turned my eyes again toward Mars lifted my hands toward his lurid rays and waited Nor did I have long to wait for scarce had I turned ere I shot with the rapidity of thought into the awful void before me There was the same instant of unthinkable cold and utter darkness that I had experienced twenty years before and then I opened my eyes in another world beneath the burning rays of a hot sun which beat through a tiny opening in the dome of the mighty forest in which I lay The scene that met my eyes was so un Martian that my heart sprang to my throat as the sudden fear swept through me that I had been aimlessly tossed upon some strange planet by a cruel fate Why not What guide had I through the trackless waste of interplanetary space What assurance that I might not as well be hurtled to some far distant star of another solar system as to Mars I lay upon a close cropped sward of red grasslike vegetation and about me stretched a grove of strange and beautiful trees covered with huge and gorgeous blossoms and filled with brilliant voiceless birds I call them birds since they were winged but mortal eye ne er rested on such odd unearthly shapes The vegetation was similar to that which covers the lawns of the red Martians of the great waterways but the trees and birds were unlike anything that I had ever seen upon Mars and then through the further trees I could see that most un Martian of all sights an open sea its blue waters shimmering beneath the brazen sun As I rose to investigate further I experienced the same ridiculous catastrophe that had met my first attempt to walk under Martian conditions The lesser attraction of this smaller planet and the reduced air pressure of its greatly rarefied atmosphere afforded so little resistance to my earthly muscles that the ordinary exertion of the mere act of rising sent me several feet into the air and precipitated me upon my face in the soft and brilliant grass of this strange world

The Gods of Mars Edgar Rice Burroughs, 2021-03-17 After the long exile on Earth John Carter finally returned to his beloved Mars But beautiful Dejah Thoris the woman he loved had vanished Now he was trapped in the legendary Eden of Mars an Eden from which none ever escaped alive Three monstrous white apes sprang into the arena On her throne Issus the living goddess of the First Born leaned forward in keen anticipation At length the apes spied the huddled knot of terror stricken maidens and with demoniacal shrieks of bestial frenzy charged upon them A wave of mad fury surged over me A single blow sent my guard unconscious to the ground Snatching up his long sword I leaped into the arena The sword whirled and a great ape sprawled headless at the feet of the fainting girls The other apes were upon me now but my act had heartened the prisoners and the cages vomited forth their inmates hot with the lust to kill doomed men dedicated to revenge upon Issus But against each of us were a thousand warriors of the First Born
