Burdick,2008-10-13 When John Burdick received his orders to ship to Vietnam in 1967 he was certain his life was over His goal was to return to the United States alive and on his feet no matter what it took He had been recruited by the military to become an intelligence agent and for a college graduate student from California it sounded intriguing But serving in Vietnam would require all of his skills to stay alive Dressed as a civilian and with little formal training Burdick learned quickly and executed missions effectively He fulfilled several purposes in Vietnam from infiltrating the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese Army command infrastructure to searching for American prisoners of war The war hit hard The deaths of all the young men

haunted him He could trust no one including the military establishment who tried to squash each success the intelligence personnel achieved In A Sphinx author John Burdick recounts a powerful and emotional narrative following his duty in the Vietnam War in the 1960s It uncovers behind the scenes footage of a military intelligence agent and his quest to help more American soldiers come home alive

30 Days in Rehab James Duhaime,2019-03-06 Thirty Days in Rehab The Tools Are Within Us details rehab and recovery The importance of the book is that it chronicles a real story in rehab The usual books don t focus on the real world of rehab and how your recovery becomes your life choices after rehab The book is needed because addicts don t need a glorified view of rehab but a down to earth honest approach to their recovery It deals with the everyday nitty gritty work to get sober You can t fool an addict into believing it is going to work they need to see how it really does work on an individual basis My work is different from the rest It is real time talk I wrote this to help other addicts choose to go to rehab and take the worry and fear out of making this choice Counselors and mental health professionals need to read it with their clients to answer their questions It prompts a dialogue with the addict Families need to understand the process better to be a support to their loved one going forward with their recovery
