Fertilizer Policy In Africa Lessons From Development Programs And Adjustment Lending:

World Bank Assistance to Agriculture in Sub-Saharan Africa, 2007-01-01 Sub Saharan Africa is a critical development priority it has some of the world s poorest countries and during the past two decades the number of poor in the Region has doubled to 300 million more than 40 percent of the Region s population Africa remains behind on most of the Millennium Development Goals MDGs and is unlikely to reach them by 2015 With some of the world s poorest countries Africa is a development priority for the donor community A major drag on Africa s development is the underperformance of the critical agriculture sector which has been neglected both by donors and governments over the past two decades The sector faces a variety of constraints that are particular to agriculture in Africa and make its development a complex challenge Poor governance and conflict in several countries further complicate matters IEG has assessed the development effectiveness of World Bank assistance in addressing constraints to agricultural development in Africa over the period of fiscal 1991 2006

Agricultural Incentives in Sub-Saharan Africa Robert Frederick Townsend, 1999-01-01 Printed on Demand Limited stock is held for this title If you would like to order 30 copies or more please contact books worldbank org Contact books worldbank org if currently unavailable QUOTE As we move into the 21st century Africa faces tremendous opportunities for growth in which agriculture will continue to play a prominent role Implementing the unfinished policy agenda is critical to realizing these opportunities QUOTE Hans P Binswanger Sector Director The main focus of this study is on improving the policy regime in Africa to stimulate agricultural growth It examines the state of agricultural incentives in Sub Saharan Africa taking stock of the current policy environment and its recent evolution to update knowledge and to help develop a stronger consensus on the appropriate policies and incentives that will stimulate agricultural growth The global environment is examined together with the macroeconomic export crop food crop and fertilizer policies in 16 African countries Fertilizer Policy in Africa Uma J. Lele, Robert E. Christiansen, Kundhavi Kadiresan, 1989 The removal of fertilizer subsidies and privatization of importation and distribution networks have been prominent features of recent policy reforms in MADIA countries to reduce budget deficits and the role of the public sector This paper reviews the reform policies implemented during the 1980s in the MADIA countries and their impact on the development of fertilizer use In particular it explores the supply and demand constraints that hinder the process of rapid growth and diffusion of fertilizer use This study recommends that 1 donors should undertake long term untied import support for fertilizers to promote sound intensification of fertilizer use on a sustained basis 2 food and fertilizer stocks be financed at the national and regional levels to encourage governments to remove intra and inter country restrictions on trade 3 improving the knowledge base on a location specific basis especially the relative role of fertilizers vis a vis other more complex resource management needs and 4 privatization offers great potential for improving fertilizer procurement and distribution Reforming agricultural markets in Africa Kherallah, Mylene, Delgado, Christopher L., Gabre-Madhin, Eleni Z., Minot, Nicholas, Johnson, Michael, 2002-01-01 The long term reduction of hunger and poverty in Sub Saharan Africa remains one of the great challenges for the international development community Eliminating hunger and promoting widespread growth in the region inevitably involves agriculture given its central role in the region s economies Over the past 20 years most African governments have carried out reforms to deregulate agricultural markets and reduce the role of state enterprises How much has the state actually withdrawn from agricultural markets Have well functioning private markets emerged How successful were these reforms in boosting agricultural production economic growth and the incomes of the rural poor What lessons can we learn from the reform process The authors of this book address these questions through an analysis based on an extensive review of experiences with reform focusing on three major agricultural markets fertilizer food crops and export crops They examine the historical rationales for intervention the factors contributing to reform the process of implementation and the impact of the reforms on farmers and consumers in Sub Saharan Africa The authors find that reforms have had many favorable results but that the impact has been muted by partial implementation and structural constraints They propose a new agenda for promoting the development of agricultural markets in Sub Saharan Africa identifying areas where governments can play a supportive role They argue that appropriate agricultural marketing policies and investments can improve livelihoods and the economic health of the region

Alan H. Gelb,2000-01-01 Africa in the 21st Century offers a comprehensive review of development prospects in each of the major development sectors      Globalization and Autocentricity in Africa's Development in the 21st Century Kidane Mengisteab,1996 African economies are the most dependent and the most marginalised in the global system Prevailing policies to integrate these economies more closely with the global economy are in the view of many misplaced and this work presents a series of alternative strategies that will tap the energies of the African people to develop their own potential and reduce their dependence on World Bank IMF led approaches      Agricultural productivity in Africa Benin, Samuel,2016-07-14 Agricultural Productivity in Africa Trends Patterns and Determinants presents updated and new analyses of land labor and total productivity trends in African agriculture It brings together analyses of a unique mix of data sources and evaluations of public policies and development projects to recommend ways to increase agricultural productivity in Africa This book is timely in light of the recent and ongoing growth recovery across the continent The good news is that agricultural productivity in Africa increased at a moderate rate between 1961 and 2012 although there are variations in the rate of growth in land labor and total factor productivities depending on country and region Differences in input use and capital intensities in agricultural production in the various farming systems and agricultural productivity zones also affect advancements in technology One conclusion based on the book s research findings derives from the substantial spatial variation in agricultural productivity For areas with similar agricultural productivity growth trends and factors what works well in one area can be used as the basis for formulating best fit location specific agricultural policies investments and interventions in similar areas This finding along with others will be of particular interest to policy and decisionmakers      Policies for Soil Fertility Management in Africa Ian Scoones,Camilla Toulmin,1999      Yield Gaps and Potential Agricultural Growth in West and Central Africa Nin-Pratt, Alejandro,Johnson, Michael,Magalhaes, Eduardo,You, Liangzhi,Diao, Xinshen,Chamberlin, Jordan,2011 West and Central

African nations face major obstacles to achieving the Millennium Development Goal of cutting poverty and hunger in half by 2015 not least among them the fragile state of their agriculture Although most regional economies depend on agriculture for employment national income and export revenues farm productivity tends to be low owing to relatively little use of chemical fertilizers improved seeds and other modern technologies Yield Gaps and Potential Agricultural Growth in West and Central Africa responds to this problem by identifying potential areas of growth in the agricultural and livestock sectors Using data on the soil water availability and weather in different parts of West and Central Africa the authors find significant gaps in different locations between the potential and actual yield of various agricultural products They then use an economywide multimarket model to simulate the future economic effects of closing these yield gaps In coastal nations crops such as cassava cereals and yams have the greatest yield gaps whereas in the Sahel livestock rice coarse grains and oilseeds groundnuts have more room for growth Although identifying these yield gaps does not guarantee that they can be closed it does provide a focus for development efforts in the region The authors conclude moreover that if such efforts involve transnational cooperation in agricultural research marketing and other areas they could produce significant benefits across West and Central Africa This study s findings will be of interest to policymakers researchers and others concerned with African development
