Schmidt,Costantino Thanos,2012-12-06 In the past applied artificial intelligence systems were built with particular emphasis on general reasoning methods intended to function efficiently even when only relatively little domain specific knowledge was available In other words AI technology aimed at the processing of knowledge stored under comparatively general representation schemes Nowadays the focus has been redirected to the role played by specific and detailed knowledge rather than to the reasoning methods themselves Many new application systems are centered around knowledge bases i e they are based on large collections of facts rules and heuristics that capture knowledge about a specific domain of applications Experience has shown that when used in combination with rich knowledge bases even simple reasoning methods can be extremely effective in a wide variety of problem domains Knowledge base construction and management will thus become the key factor in the development of viable knowledge based applications Knowledge Base Management Systems KBMSs are being proposed that provide user friendly environments for the construction retrieval and manipulation of large shared knowledge bases In addition to deductive reasoning KBMSs require operational characteristics such as concurrent access integrity maintenance error recovery security and perhaps distribution For the development of KBMSs the need to integrate concepts and technologies from different areas such as Artificial Intelligence Databases and Logic has been widely recognized One of the central issues for KBMSs is the framework used for knowledge representation semantic networks frames rules and logics are proposed by the AI and logic communities
