Further Study Of The Lower Eocene Mammalian Faunas Of Southwestern:

A Further Study of the Lower Eocene Mammalian Faunas of Southwestern Wyoming Charles Lewis Gazin, 1962 A Further Study of the Lower Eocene Mammalian Faunas of Southwestern Wyoming Charles Lewis Gazin, Crawford H. Eocene Biodiversity Gregg F. Gunnell, 2012-12-06 Initially this work was designed to Greenewalt, Porter M. Kier, 1962 document and study the diversification of modern mammalian groups and was quite successful and satisfying However as field and laboratory work continued there began to develop a suspicion that not all of the Eocene story was being told It became apparent that most fossil samples especially those from the American West were derived from similar preservational circumstances and similar depositional settings A program was initiated to look for other potential sources of fossil samples either from non traditional lithologies or from geographic areas that were not typically sampled As this program of research grew it began to demonstrate that different lithologies and different geographic areas told different stories from those that had been developed based on more typical faunal assemblages This book is conceived as an introduction to non traditional Eocene fossils samples and as a place to document and discuss features of these fossil assemblages that are rare or that come from rarely represented habitats Geological Survey Bulletin ,1982 Pleistocene and Holocene Fluvial History of Uphapee Creek, Macon County, Alabama Donald L. Gautier, Helaine W. Markewich, Thomas M. Bown, David M. Schankler, Raymond A. Roehler, John H. Hanley, James G. Honey, 1988 Geology of the Tierra Redonda Mountain and Bradley Quadrangles, Monterey and San Luis Obispo Counties, California David L. Durham, 1968 A study of stratigraphy and structure of Cenozoic sedimentary rocks in part of the Salinas Valley The Tertiary Record of Rodents in North America William W. Korth, 2013-11-21 Nearly half of the known species of mammals alive today more than 1600 are rodents or gnawing mammals Nowak and Paradiso 1983 The diversity of rodents is greater than that of any other order of mammals Thus it is not surprising that the fossil record of this order is extensive and fossil material of rodents from the Tertiary is known from all continents except Antarctica and Australia The purpose of this book is to compile the published knowledge on fossil rodents from North America and present it in a way that is accessible to paleontologists and mammalogists interested in evolutionary studies of ro dents The literature on fossil rodents is widely scattered between journals on paleontology and mammalogy and in house publications of museums and universities Currently there is no single source that offers ready access to the literature on a specific family of rodents and its fossil history This work is presented as a reference text that can be useful to specialists in rodents fossil or recent as well as mammalian paleontologists working on whole faunas Because the diversity of rodents in the world is essentially limitless any monograph that included all fossil rodents would similarly be limitless Hence this book is limited to the re cord of Tertiary rodents of North America The several species of South American caviomorph rodents that invaded North America near the end of the Tertiary are also not included in this text Evolution of Tertiary Mammals of North America: Volume 1, Terrestrial Carnivores, Ungulates, and Ungulate Like Mammals Christine M. Janis, Kathleen M. Scott, Louis L. Jacobs,1998-05-28 This book is designed as a source and reference for people interested in the history and fossil record of North American tertiary mammals Each chapter covers a different family or order and includes information on anatomical features systematics the distribution of the genera and species at different fossil localities and a discussion of their paleobiology Many of these groups have never been covered in this fashion before Late Paleocene-early Eocene Climatic and Biotic Events in the Marine and Terrestrial Records Marie-Pierre Aubry, Spencer G. Lucas, William A. Berggren, 1998 This book is a comprehensive collection of the best scholarship available on the transition between the Paleocene and Eocene epochs when the earth experienced the warmest climatic episode of the Cenozoic era These 21 contributions detail the major turnover among marine and terrestrial organisms that resulted from sudden global warming
