Food Aid And International Agriculture:

The State of Food and Agriculture, 2006 Food and Agriculture Organization, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2006-01-01 International food aid has rightly been credited with saving millions of lives and is often the only thing that stands between vulnerable people and death. However, it was a serious obstacle in the Doha Round of multilateral trade negotiations and has been sharply criticised as a donor driven response that creates dependency on the part of recipients and undermines local agricultural producers and traders upon whom sustainable food security depends. This issue of the State of Food and Agriculture report examines the issues and controversies surrounding international food aid particularly in crisis situations. It considers the ways in which food aid can support sustainable improvements in food security in order to preserve its essential humanitarian role whilst minimising the possibility of harmful secondary impacts.

International Food Aid John Di Corrado, 2013-01-01 For over 55 years the United States has played a leading role in global efforts to alleviate hunger and malnutrition and to enhance world food security through international food aid activities. The development and implementation of a U.S. global food security initiative and commitments made by global leaders to support agricultural development have increased Congress's focus on U.S. international food aid programs. The primary objectives for foreign food aid include providing emergency and humanitarian assistance in response to natural or man-made disasters and promoting agricultural development and food security. The United States provides food aid for emergency food relief and to support development projects. This book examines the programs, donors, and world food program controls in support of international food aid currently being enacted to deal with this global crisis. International

International Agricultural Law and Policy Hope Johnson, 2018-10-26 From soil degradation and biodiversity loss to the coexistence of malnutrition and obesity many of the largest challenges facing humanity today are underpinned by food and agriculture systems In order to alleviate and resolve them global governance of food and agriculture needs to be reformed Unravelling the array of international regulatory instruments this timely book provides the first systematic analysis of the international law surrounding food systems International Agricultural Law and Policy provides a systems based analysis of the rules that intersect with the physical elements of agriculture against a framework of commonly held norms The author conducts a comprehensive examination not only of the rules but also the implementation and broader socioeconomic scientific and political context By exploring and clarifying the relationship between food security and the right to food and sustainability Johnson closes the gap between the disparate international rules that govern food and agriculture while exploring the practical implications of these overlapping regimes This unique book is an invaluable resource for lawyers and social scientists working within food and agriculture systems and their governance and lays the much needed groundwork for future research For policy makers in the food and agricultural space this book provides a wide ranging and innovative analysis of the global regulatory landscape that influences law and policy processes International Agricultural with sharp disagreements over genetically modified crops agricultural subsidies and ways of guaranteeing food security in the face of successive global food crises In Hunger in the Balance Jennifer Clapp provides a timely and comprehensive account of the contemporary politics of food aid explaining the origins and outcomes of recent clashes between donor nations and between donors and recipients She identifies fundamental disputes between donors over tied food aid which requires that food be sourced in the donor country versus untied aid which provides cash to purchase food closer to the source of hunger These debates have been especially intense between the major food aid donors particularly the European Union and the United States Similarly the EU's rejection of GMO agricultural imports has raised concerns among recipients about accepting GMO foodstuffs from the United States For the several hundred million people who at present have little choice but to rely on food aid for their daily survival Clapp concludes the consequences of these political differences are profound
