Milks derived from domesticated dairy species other than the cow are an essential dietary component for many countries around the world. Due to the unavailability of cow milk and the low consumption of meat, the milks of non bovine species such as goat, buffalo, sheep, horse, camel, Zebu, Yak, mare, and reindeer are critical daily food sources of protein, phosphate, and calcium. Furthermore, because of hypoallergenic properties of certain species milk, including goats, mare, and camel, are increasingly recommended as substitutes in diets for those who suffer from cow milk allergies. This book discusses key aspects of non bovine milk production, including raw milk production in various regions worldwide. Describes the compositional, nutritional, therapeutic, physio-chemical, and microbiological characteristics of all non bovine milks. Addresses processing technologies as well as various approaches to the distribution and consumption of manufactured milk products. Expounds characteristics of non bovine species milks relative to those of human milk, including nutritional, allergenic, immunological, health, and cultural factors.
