Faber Of Food:

The Faber Book of Food Claire Clifton, Colin Spencer, 1996 Intended for both the bedside table and the kitchen this is an anthology of food writing from the classic to the curious reflecting not merely gastronomic pleasures but also the lack of them Aiming to illuminate readers understanding of food and eating the editors have plundered novels memoirs and diaries travel and recipe books lectures essays and philosophy The book spans the pleasures of the table culinary disasters rivalry and snobbery pretension and generosity from Babylonian times to the present day Urban Food Culture Cecilia

Leong-Salobir, 2019-04-02 This book explores the food history of twentieth century Sydney Shanghai and Singapore within an Asian Pacific network of flux and flows It engages with a range of historical perspectives on each city s food and culinary histories including colonial culinary legacies restaurants cafes street food market gardens supermarkets and cookbooks examining the exchange of goods and services and how the migration of people to the urban centres informed the social histories of the cities foodways in the contexts of culinary nationalism ethnic identities and globalization Considering the recent food history of the three cities and its complex narrative of empire trade networks and migration patterns this book discusses key aspects of each city s cuisine in the twentieth century examining the interwoven threads of colonialism and globalization

The Global Food Crisis Satish Kedia, 2010-01-05 The NAPA Bulletin series is dedicated to the practical problem solving and policy applications of anthropological knowledge and methods These papers demonstrate the diverse ways in which anthropology can be used to address the global food crisis while directly responding to local realities Experts explore the dilemma of food insecurity in developing and industrialized countries Practicing and applied anthropologists sociologists and public health workers examine the global food crisis through a variety of theoretical and analytical frameworks Examines the ways in which food policies and economic restructuring have contributed to increasing food inequities across the globe Eating Architecture Jamie Horwitz, Paulette Singley, 2006-02-17 A highly original collection of essays that explore the relationship between food and architecture the preparation of meals and the production of space The contributors to this highly original collection of essays explore the relationship between food and architecture asking what can be learned by examining the often metaphorical intersection of the preparation of meals and the production of space In a culture that includes the Food Channel and the knife juggling chefs of Benihana food has become not only an obsession but an alternative art form The nineteen essays and Gallery of Recipes in Eating Architecture seize this moment to investigate how art and architecture engage issues of identity ideology conviviality memory and loss that cookery evokes This is a book for all those who opt for the combination platter of cultural inquiry as well as for the readers of M F K Fisher and Ruth Reichl The essays are organized into four sections that lead the reader from the landscape to the kitchen the table and finally the mouth The essays in Place Settings examine the relationships between food and location that arise in culinary colonialism and the global economy of tourism Philosophy in the Kitchen traces the routines that create a site for aesthetic experimentation including an examination of gingerbread houses as art food and architectural space The essays in Table Rules consider the spatial and performative aspects of eating and the ways in which shared meals are among the most perishable and preserved cultural artifacts Finally Embodied Taste considers the sensual apprehension of food and what it means to consume a work of art The Gallery of Recipes contains images by contemporary architects on the subject of eating architecture

Soft Matter in Foods Graeme Gillies, D  rick Rousseau, 2025-06-23 Using soft matter physics to understand food materials at different length scales creates new opportunities for scientists in academia and industry to enhance the properties production and nutritional quality of processed foods Recognising the growing transfer of knowledge between the food science and soft matter communities the editors have brought together a wealth of expertise with rich insights for both Beginning with the fundamentals this book describes the behaviour of colloids proteins lipids and carbohydrates in the context of soft matter science Chapters on techniques and the behaviour of soft matter systems open the soft matter toolbox providing food scientists with new approaches to characterise food Taking a soft matter approach to a range of real food systems chapters on applications provide a practical demonstration of the synergy between food science and soft matter

Eating to Extinction Dan Saladino,2022-02-01 A New York Times Book Review Editors Choice What Saladino finds in his adventures are people with soul deep relationships to their food This is not the decadence or the preciousness we might associate with a word like foodie but a form of reverence Enchanting Molly Young The New York Times Dan Saladino s Eating to Extinction is the prominent broadcaster s pathbreaking tour of the world s vanishing foods and his argument for why they matter now more than ever Over the past several decades globalization has homogenized what we eat and done so ruthlessly The numbers are stark Of the roughly six thousand different plants once consumed by human beings only nine remain major staples today Just three of these rice wheat and corn now provide fifty percent of all our calories Dig deeper and the trends are more worrisome still The source of much of the world s food seeds is mostly in the control of just four corporations Ninety five percent of milk consumed in the United States comes from a single breed of cow Half of all the world s cheese is made with bacteria or enzymes made by one company And one in four beers drunk around the world is the product of one brewer If it strikes you that everything is starting to taste the same wherever you are in the world you re by no means alone This matters when we lose diversity and foods become endangered we not only risk the loss of traditional foodways but also of flavors smells and textures that may never be experienced again And the consolidation of our food has other steep costs including a lack of resilience in the face of climate change pests and parasites Our food monoculture is a threat to our health and to the planet In Eating to Extinction the distinguished BBC food journalist Dan Saladino travels the world to experience and document our most at risk foods before it s too late He tells the fascinating stories of the people who continue to cultivate forage hunt cook and consume what the rest of us have forgotten or didn t even know existed Take honey not the familiar product sold in plastic bottles but the wild honey gathered by the Hadza people of East Africa whose diet consists of eight hundred different plants and animals and who communicate with birds in order to locate bees nests Or consider murnong once the staple food of Aboriginal Australians this small root vegetable with the sweet taste of coconut is undergoing a revival after nearly being driven to extinction And in Sierra Leone there are just a few surviving stenophylla trees a plant species now considered crucial to the future of coffee From an Indigenous American chef refining precolonial recipes to farmers tending Geechee red peas on the Sea Islands of Georgia the individuals profiled in Eating to Extinction are essential guides to treasured foods that have endured in the face of rampant sameness and standardization They also provide a roadmap to a food system that is healthier more robust and above all richer in flavor and meaning
