Agency in Archaeology Marcia-Anne Dobres, John Robb, 2014-06-11

Agency in Archaeology is the first critical volume to scrutinise the concept of agency and to examine in depth its potential to inform our understanding of the past Theories of agency recognise that human beings make choices hold intentions and take action This offers archaeologists scope to move beyond looking at broad structural or environmental change and instead to consider the individual and the group Agency in Archaeology brings together nineteen internationally renowned scholars who have very different and often conflicting stances on the meaning and use of agency theory to archaeology The volume is composed of five theoretically based discussions and nine case studies drawing on regions from North America and Mesoamerica to Western and central Europe and ranging in subject from the late Pleistocene hunter gatherers to the restructuring of gender relations in the north eastern US

Palaces and Power in the Americas Jessica Joyce Christie, Patricia Joan Sarro, 2010-01-01

Ancient American palaces still captivate those who stand before them Even in their fallen and ruined condition the palaces project such power that according to the editors of this new collection it must have been deliberately drawn into their formal designs spatial layouts and choice of locations Such messages separated palaces from other elite architecture and reinforced the power and privilege of those residing in them Indeed as Christie and Sarro write the relation between political power and architecture is a pervasive and intriguing theme in the Americas Given the variety of cultures time periods and geographical locations examined within the editors of this book have grouped the articles into four sections The first looks at palaces in cultures where they have not previously been identified including the Huaca of Moche Site the Wari of Peru and Chaco Canyon in the U S Southwest The second section discusses palaces as stage sets that express power such as those found among the Maya among the Coast Salish of the Pacific Northwest and at El Tajín on the Mexican Gulf Coast The third part of the volume presents cases in which differences in elite residences imply differences in social status with examples from Pasado de la Amada the Valley of Oaxaca Teotihuacan and the Aztecs The final section compares architectural strategies between cultures the models here are Farfán Peru under both the Chimú and the Inka and the separate states of the Maya and the Inka Such scope and the quality of the scholarship make Palaces and Power in the Americas a must have work on the subject

Archaeology of Households Kinship and Social Change offers new perspectives on the processes of social change from the standpoint of household archaeology This volume develops new theoretical and methodological approaches to the archaeology of households pursuing three critical themes household diversity in human residential communities with and without archaeologically identifiable houses interactions within and between households that explicitly considers impacts of kin and non kin relationships and lastly change as a process that involves the choices made by members of households in the context of larger societal constraints Encompassing these themes authors explore the role of social ties and their material manifestations within the house dwelling or other constructed space how the household relates to other social units how households consolidate power and control over resources and how these changes manifest at multiple scales The case studies presented in this volume have broader implications for understanding the drivers of change the ways households create the contexts for change and how households serve as spaces for invention reaction and or resistance Understanding the nature of relationships within households is necessary for a more complete understanding of communities and regions as these ties are vital to explaining how and why societies change Taking a comparative outlook with case studies from around the world this volume will inform students and professionals researching household archaeology and be of interest to other disciplines concerned with the relationship between social networks and societal change
