Extended Axiomatic Linguistics James Dickins, 2011-06-24 TRENDS IN LINGUISTICS is a series of books that open new perspectives in our understanding of language. The series publishes state of the art work on core areas of linguistics across theoretical frameworks as well as studies that provide new insights by building bridges to neighbouring fields such as neuroscience and cognitive science. TRENDS IN LINGUISTICS considers itself a forum for cutting edge research based on solid empirical data on language in its various manifestations including sign languages. It regards linguistic variation in its synchronic and diachronic dimensions as well as in its social contexts as important sources of insight for a better understanding of the design of linguistic systems and the ecology and evolution of language. Mathematical Methods in Linguistics Barbara B.H. Partee, A.G. ter Meulen, R. Wall, 2012-12-06 Elementary set theory accustoms the students to mathematical abstraction. It includes the standard constructions of relations, functions and orderings and leads to a discussion of the various orders of infinity. The material on logic covers not only the standard statement logic and first order predicate logic but includes an introduction to formal systems, axiomatization and model theory. The section on algebra is presented with an emphasis on lattices as well as Boolean and Heyting algebras. Background for recent research in natural language semantics includes sections on lambda abstraction and generalized quantifiers. Chapters on automata theory and formal languages contain a discussion of languages between context free and context sensitive and form the background for much current work in syntactic theory and computational linguistics. The many exercises not only reinforce basic skills but offer an entry to linguistic applications of mathematical concepts. For upper level undergraduate students and graduate students in theoretical linguistics, computer science students with interests in computational linguistics, logic, programming and artificial intelligence, mathematicians and logicians with interests in linguistics and the semantics of natural language.
