Quality of Life, Balance of Power and Nuclear Weapons, 2008 Aleksandr V. Avakov,2008 It seems that public health expenditures as a share of total health expenditures has a stronger correlation with the comparative level and the rates of improvement of the main health care indicators than the absolute level measured as a percent of GDP of total health expenditures The data demonstrates that the US has the lowest public health expenditure of developed market economies and is increasingly lagging behind other countries by main health care indicators The proposed introduction of national health insurance in the US would probably mean some sort of tax increase The author therefore also seeks to shed light on modern ideological debates about the share of taxation in GDP and its influence on rates of growth Aircraft Type Designators ,2005
