The Face of the Past Charles Dellheim, 2004-03-25 This is a study not of an elite of artists and thinkers but of broad cultural activities such as local archaeology and tourism historic preservation and restoration and architectural historianism Professor Dellheim argues that the Victorian s interest in the medieval past was far more than a revolt against modern civilization Chivalry and the Medieval Past Katie Stevenson, Barbara Gribling, 2016 An examination of the ways in which the fluid concept of chivalry has been used and appropriated after the Middle Ages One of the most difficult and complex ethical and cultural codes to define chivalry has proved a flexible ever changing phenomenon constantly adapted in the hands of medieval knights Renaissance princes early modern antiquarians Enlightenment scholars modern civic authorities authors historians and re enactors This book explores the rich variations in how the Middle Ages were conceptualised and historicised to illuminate the plurality of uses of the past Using chivalry as a lens through which to examine concepts and uses of the medieval it provides a critical assessment of the ways in which medieval chivalry became a shorthand to express contemporary ideals powerfully demonstrating the ways in which history could be appropriated The chapters combine attention to documentary evidence with what material culture can tell us in particular using the built environment and the landscape as sources to understand how the medieval past was renegotiated With contributions spanning diverse geographic regions and periods it redraws current chronological boundaries by considering medievalism from the late Middle Ages to the present Katie Stevenson is Senior Lecturer in Late Mediaeval History and Director of the Institute of Scottish Historical Research at the University of St Andrews Barbara Gribling is a Junior Research Fellow in the Department of History at Durham University Contributors David W Allan Stefan Goebel Barbara Gribling Steven C Hughes Peter N Lindfield Antti Matikkala Rosemary Mitchell Paul Pickering Katie Stevenson The Representation of the Past Kevin Walsh, 2002-09-11 The 1980s and early 1990s have seen a marked increase in public interest in our historic environment The museum and heritage industry has expanded as the past is exploited for commercial profit In The Representation of the Past Kevin Walsh examines this international trend and questions the packaging of history which serves only to distance people from their own heritage A superficial unquestioning portrayal of the past he feels separates us from an understanding of our cultural and political present Here Walsh suggests a number of ways in which the museum can fulfill its potential by facilitating our comprehension of cultural identity The Cambridge Companion to English Literature, 1830-1914 Joanne Shattock, 2010-01-28 A volume of essays on Victorian themes genres and authors aimed at students and lecturers The Past Is a Foreign Country - Revisited David Lowenthal, 2015-10-01 The past remains essential and inescapable A quarter century after the publication of his classic account of man s attitudes to his past David Lowenthal revisits how we celebrate expunge contest and domesticate the past to serve present needs He shows how nostalgia and heritage now pervade every facet of public and popular culture History embraces nature and the cosmos as well as humanity The past is seen and touched and tasted and smelt as well as heard and read about Empathy re enactment memory and commemoration overwhelm traditional history A unified past once certified by experts and reliant on written texts has become a fragmented contested history forged by us all New insights into history and memory bias and objectivity artefacts and monuments identity and authenticity and remorse and contrition make this book once again the essential guide to the past that we inherit reshape and bequeath to the future

The Culture of History Billie Melman, 2006-06-22 In this original and widely researched book Billie Melman explores the culture of history during the age of modernity Her book is about the production of English pasts the multiplicity of their representations and the myriad ways in which the English looked at history sometimes in the most literal sense of looking and made use of it in a social and material urban world and in their imagination Covering the period between the Napoleonic Wars and the Coronation of 1953 Melman recoups the work of antiquarians historians novelists and publishers wax modellers cartoonists and illustrators painters playwrights and actors reformers and educationalists film stars and their fans musicians and composers opera fans and radio listeners Avoiding a separation between high and low culture Melman analyses nineteenth century plebeian culture and twentieth century mass culture and their venues like Madame Tussaud's Chamber of Horrors panoramas national monuments like the Tower of London and films as well as studying forms of minority art notably opera She demonstrates how history was produced and how it circulated from texts visual images and sounds to people and places and back to a variety of texts and images While paying attention to individuals making do with culture Melman considers constrictions of class gender the state and the market place on the consumption of history Focusing on two privileged pasts the Tudor monarchy and the French Revolution the latter seen as an English event and as the framework for narrating and comprehending history Melman shows that during the nineteenth century the most popular longest enduring and most highly commercialized images of the past represented it not as cosy and secure but rather as dangerous disorderly and violent The past was also imagined as an urban place rather than as rural In Melman's account City not green Country is the centre of a popular version of the past whose central images are the dungeon the gallows and the guillotine

Interpreting Rurality Gary Bosworth, Peter Somerville, 2013-10-15 The British countryside is a national institution most people aspire to live there many people use it for leisure and recreation and we can all watch rural life played out on our television screen read about it in novels or consume its imagery in art and cinematography The aim of this book is to explore the way that these aspirations and perceptions influence the way that the term rural is interpreted across different academic disciplines Definitions of rural are not exact leaving room for these interpretations to have a significant impact on the meanings conveyed in different areas of research and across different economic social and spatial contexts In this book contributors present research across a range of subjects allowing critical reflections upon their personal and disciplinary interpretations of rural This resulting volume is a collection of diverse chapters that gives an emergent sense of how the notion of rural changes and blurs as the disciplinary lens is adjusted In drawing together these strands it becomes clear that human relations with rural space morph materiality into highly complex representations wherein both disadvantage and social exclusion persist within a rurality that is also commodified consumed and cherished
