From My Life Poetry And Truth Part Four Campaign In France 1792 Siege Of Mainz:

Goethe, Volume 5 Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 2024-01-09 An authoritative English translation of Goethe's classic autobiographical account of war and conquest in the age of revolution. In August 1792 Goethe accompanied Karl August, Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenach, during the Prusso-Austrian invasion of revolutionary France to restore Louis XVI as king. After the Cannonade of Valmy that September, the German armies were forced to retreat, never again to threaten the heart of France until the end of the Napoleonic era. The French subsequently invaded the Rhineland and captured the city of Mainz, claiming it for the French Republic. When German armies besieged Mainz, Goethe witnessed the capture of the city at the close of 1793. Goethe's narrative of these events has become a classic text for the history of Franco-German relations during the revolutionary period. A product of recollection, historical hindsight, and considerable study of other published sources, it is a fascinating document of the military catastrophe exposing the decline of Prussian power since the death of Frederick II, which eventually culminated in Napoleon's devastating 1806 victory at Jena and Auerstedt. From My Life: Poetry and truth, pt.4 Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 1994 Goethe, Volume 5 Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 1994-11-20 Campaign in France 1792 Siege of Mainz Goethe's narrative of the unsuccessful campaign and the siege has become a classic text for the history of Franco-German relations during the revolutionary period. A product of recollection, historical hindsight, and considerable study of other published sources, it is a fascinating document of the military catastrophe exposing the decline of Prussian power since the death of Frederick II, which eventually culminated in Napoleon's devastating 1806 victory at Jena and Auerstedt. The Erotics of War in German Romanticism Patricia Anne Simpson, 2006 In The Erotics of War in German Romanticism, Patricia Anne Simpson explores the ways early nineteenth-century German philosophers, poets, and artists represent war and erotic desire. The author argues that gender is connected to a larger debate about the construction of the self in relation to a community at a time that this definition is under revision. She analyzes the culture of war as it shapes the bonds of fraternal, familial, and eventually national identity. Simpson defines the erotics of war as discursive attempts to assert the priority of ethical identity and citizenship over individualized desire. The seemingly ancillary problem of female desire emerges not as a marginal issue but as the focal point of a debate about identity. Witnessing the Revolutionary and Napoleonic Wars in German Central Europe L. James, 2013-10-31 Drawing on a wide range of primary sources, this volume argues that although the Revolutionary and Napoleonic Wars are often understood as laying the foundations for total war, many eyewitnesses continued to draw upon older interpretative frameworks to make sense of the armed struggle and attendant political and social upheaval. Friedrich Nietzsche and Weimar Classicism (Studies in German Literature, Linguistics, and Culture) Paul Bishop, Roger H. Stephenson, 2005 The book provides an overview of related scholarly literature, discusses Nietzsche's aesthetic theory in The Birth of Tragedy, recounts the composition of Thus Spoke Zarathustra, and offers an interpretation of the aesthetic gospel in this central work. A concluding chapter explores the continuities in aesthetic theory from Leucippus to Ernst Cassirer By demonstrating the constitutive function of the aesthetics of Weimar classicism in his philosophy this book opens up a fresh and original perspective on reading Nietzsche

BOOK JACKET Goethe in English Derek Glass, Martin H. Jones, 2005 This bibliography was commissioned by the English Goethe Society as a contribution to the celebration in 1999 of the 250th anniversary of Goethe's birth It sets out to record translations of his works into English that have been published in the twentieth century up to and including material published in that anniversary year It aims to serve as wide a constituency as possible be it as a simple reference tool for tracing a translation of a given work or as a documentary source for specialized studies of Goethe reception in the English speaking world The work records publications during the century not merely translations that originated during this period It includes numerous reprintings of older material as well as some belated first publications of translations from the nineteenth century It shows how frequent and how long enduring was the recourse of publishers and anthologists to a Goethe Victorian in diction a signal factor in perceptions and misperceptions Derek Glass was putting the finishing touches to the bibliography at the time of his sudden death in March 2004 Colleagues at Kings College London have edited the final manuscript which is now published jointly by the English Goethe Society and the Modern Humanities Research Association both as a worthy commemoration of Goethe's anniversary and as a tribute to Derek himself and Natural Science in the Age of Romanticism Bernhard Kuhn, 2016-04-15 Set against the backdrop of a rapidly fissuring disciplinary landscape where poetry and science are increasingly viewed as irreconcilable and unrelated Bernhard Kuhn's study uncovers a previously ignored fundamental connection between autobiography and the natural sciences. Examining the autobiographies and scientific writings of Rousseau, Goethe, and Thoreau as representative of their ages, Kuhn challenges the now entrenched thesis of the two cultures. Rather, these three writers are exemplary in that their autobiographical and scientific writings may be read not as separate or even antithetical but as mutually constitutive projects that challenge the newly emerging boundaries between scientific and humanistic thought during the Romantic period. Reading each writer's life stories and nature works side by side as they were written, Kuhn reveals the scientific character of autobiographical writing while demonstrating the autobiographical nature of natural science. He considers all three writers in the context of scientific developments in their own times as well as ours, showing how each one marks a distinctive stage in the growing estrangement of the arts and sciences from the self-assured epistemic unity of Rousseau's time to the splintering of disciplines into competing ways of knowing under the pressures of specialization and professionalization during the late Romantic age of Thoreau. His book thus traces an unfolding drama in which these writers and their contemporaries, each situated in an intellectual landscape more fragmented than the last, seek to keep together what modern culture is determined to break apart.
