The Nurturing of New Educational Researchers María de Ibarrola, Lorin W. Anderson, 2014-07-11 Five educational researchers coming from a variety of higher education institutions academic disciplines and cultural backgrounds met together over a three year period to discuss the present and future of doctoral education and training in the field of education Their hope was that the product of their discussions would enable educators and policy makers around the world to rethink restructure and even design new programs to prepare the rising generation of educational researchers in their countries These differences in academic national and institutional perspectives led to a variety of ways even conflicting ones in which the quality of doctoral education and training could be improved Based on our discussion we came to the conclusion that there are no universal solutions to the problems involved in setting up and operating a quality doctoral program Rather educators would be wise to be aware of the alternatives at their disposal and make informed choices based on an understanding of the larger societal and political contexts in their states regions or nations To facilitate this decision making process we have chosen to conclude with a set of key questions that should be addressed by those seeking to examine and improve their doctoral programs in education and briefly describe some of the alternative ways of answering these questions Instead of passively absorbing a unified position then the reader is invited to join the dialogue that has taken place and is still taking place between and among the authors To exemplify such a dialogue each chapter is followed by one or two commentaries written by members of the group We would encourage the reader to write commentaries on the individual chapters and perhaps the commentaries thereby engaging in a dialogue with the authors on a fairly personal level

Education, Research and Perspectives, 1992 Handbook of Family Literacy, Education for Liberation Gerard Robinson, Elizabeth English Smith, 2019-01-25

Almost 650 000 men and women approximately the size of the city of Memphis TN return home from prison every year Oftentimes with some pocket change and a bus ticket they reenter society and struggle to find work housing a supportive social network Economic barriers the stigma of a felony conviction and mental health and addiction challenges make reentry a bleak picture leading some to return to a life of crime A Department of Justice study of 404 638 inmates in 30 states released in 2005 for example identified that 68 percent were rearrested within 3 years and 77 percent within 5 years of release Education and workforce readiness programs must be central components in better preparing individuals to successfully reenter society and stay out of prison This book compiles chapters written by individuals on the right and the left of the political spectrum and within and outside the fields of prison education and reentry that address this need for reform Chapters feature the voices of prominent national figures pushing for reform current and former students who have benefitted from an education program while in prison those teaching or managing educational programs within prison and researchers entrepreneurs and policy influencers

Education Studies in South Africa Charl C. Wolhuter, 2020-12-31

The thesis of this volume is that the fields of scholarly enquiry of Education internationally as well as in South Africa in particular despite being fields of virile scholarly activity and output are in need of a major overhaul In this collected work this want in research is encapsulated in three words relevance rigour and restructuring Research in the scholarly field s of Education is predominantly of small scale non accumulative widely condemned as not of a comparable standard to research done in other social sciences much less upon a par with research in the natural sciences and lacking structure in the sense of being anchored in a firm theory To make matters worse scholars in Education internationally and in South Africa have till very recently eschewed discussion as to the packaging or structuring of knowledge produced by Education research The book consists of chapters containing original research unpacking these desiderata from a variety of angles The authors had them served by a variety of methods from deductively argued position papers to empirical research the latter both quantitative survey research and qualitative
