Feeding Mexico Enrique Ochoa, 2000 Winner of the 1998 Michael C Meyer Manuscript Prize p Feeding Mexico The Political Uses of Food since 1910 traces the Mexican government's intervention in the regulation production and distribution of food from the days of Cardenas to the recent privatization inspired by NAFTA Professor Ochoa argues that the real goals of the government's food subsidies were political driven by presidential desires to court urban labor Many of the agencies and policies were hastily set in place in response to short term political or economic crises Since the goals were not to alleviate poverty but to provide modest subsidies to urban consumers the policies did not eliminate destitution or malnutrition in the country Despite the minimal achievements of these interventionist policies the State Food Agency provided a symbol of the state's concern for the workers The elimination of the Agency in the 1990s prompted social protest and unrest p Feeding Mexico is the first study to examine the creation of networks to deliver food products the relationship of these channels of distribution to the food crisis and the role of the state in trying to ameliorate the problem Based on exhaustive research of new archival material and richly documented with statistical tables this book exposes the dynamics and outcome of social policy in twentieth century Mexico p School Food Politics in Mexico José Tenorio, 2023-10-26 Intertwining policy analysis and ethnography Jos Tenorio examines how and why now the promotion of healthy lifestyles has been positioned as an ideal solution to obesity and how this shapes the preparation sale and consumption of food in schools in Mexico This book situates obesity as a structural problem enabled by market driven policy change problematizing the focus on individual behavior change which underpins current obesity policy It argues that the idea of healthy lifestyles draws attention away from the economic and political roots of obesity shifting blame onto an uneducated population Deploying Foucault's concept of dispositif Tenorio argues that healthy lifestyles functions as an ensemble of mechanisms to deploy representations of reality spaces institutions and subjectivities aligned with market principles constructing individuals both as culprits for what they eat and the prime locus of policy intervention to change diets He demonstrates how this ensemble enmeshes within the local cultural and economic conditions surrounding the provisioning of food in Mexican schools and how it is contested in the practices around cooking Expanding the conversation on the politics of food in schools obesity policy and dominant perspectives on the relation between food and health this book is a must read for scholars of food and nutrition public health and education as well as those with an interest in development studies and policy enactment and outcomes

Valdes,2008-10-02 The vast majority of the world s poorest households depend on farming for their livelihood During the 1960s and 1970s most developing countries imposed pro urban and anti agricultural policies while many high income countries restricted agricultural imports and subsidized their farmers Both sets of policies inhibited economic growth and poverty alleviation in developing countries Although progress has been made over the past two decades to reduce those policy biases many trade and welfare reducing price distortions remain between agriculture and other sectors as well as within the agricultural sector of both rich and poor countries Comprehensive empirical studies of the disarray in world agricultural markets first appeared approximately 20 years ago Since then the OECD has provided estimates each year of market distortions in high income countries but there has been no comparable estimates for the world s developing countries This volume is the second in a series other volumes cover Africa Asia and Europe s transition economies that not only fills that void for recent years but extends the estimates in a consistent and comparable way back in time and provides analytical narratives for scores of countries that shed light on the evolving nature and extent of policy interventions over the past half century Distortions to Agricultural Incentives in Latin America provides an overview of the evolution of distortions to agricultural incentives caused by price and trade policies in the economies of South America plus the Dominican Republic Nicaragua and Mexico Together these countries constitute about 80 percent of the region s population agricultural output and overall GDP Sectoral trade and exchange rate policies in the region have changed greatly since the 1950s and there have been substantial reforms especially in the 1980s Nonetheless numerous price distortions in this region remain others have been added and there have even been some policy reversals in recent years The new empirical indicators in these country studies provide a strong evidence based foundation for assessing the successes and failures of the past and for evaluating policy options for the years ahead Global Environment Outlook - GEO-6: Healthy Planet, Healthy People UN
