Dynamics of Romantic Love Mario Mikulincer,Gail S. Goodman,2006-03-14 A theoretically and empirically rich exploration of universal questions this book examines the interplay of three distinct behavioral systems involved in romantic love This integrative volume will be of interest to both researchers and clinicians Love, Honor and Value Suzanne Mintz,Suzanne Geffen Mintz,2002 This book is about family caregivers those who are just beginning a caregiving journey and those for whom family caregiving is an integral part of their daily lives Eggs on the Wall . . . for the Love of Family Donna Jean Gerrier,2017-02-16 The Gerrier family faced monumental challenges together Eggs on the Wall For the Love of Family is about sacrifice responsibility and the compassion that Donna Jean had for her elderly parents They embraced humour and a love of life which was better than medicine Her mother was diagnosed with rheumatoid arthritis and osteoporosis Her father a Parkinsonian cared for her mother until he suffered a stroke This resulted in both parents being immobile and confined to wheelchairs Donna Jean left a thriving career as well as her study of vocal performance and chose to be her parents main caregiver when their needs surpassed the home care mandate The days unfolded from dealing with health care bureaucracy to managing her parents high level care hiring private workers running a household and managing the finances The Gerrier familys motto was to do the best they could with what they had to work with They did not merely exist they lived Her fathers condition improved due to non traditional treatments received from a neurologist in New York City Their lives were not without outrageous experiences Donna Jean tells an intriguing story of how her father nearly lost his life in Las Vegas and the horror she and her father lived through being arrested in Stockholm Sweden It was assumed they were Russian spies as well as husband and wife The family dog Sir Samwell played a major part in their lives You will read how he definitely ran the show Donna Jean continues her long time passions to end violence against animals and women She also advocates for stronger laws concerning their safety and rights She shares how she sees the world today and emphasizes the importance of supporting each other avoiding isolation Donna Jean stresses if you choose to be a caregiver for your family strive for no regrets Do all you can the very best you can that is enough For Love or Money Nancy

Folbre, 2012-09-06 As women moved into the formal labor force in large numbers over the last forty years care work traditionally provided primarily by women has increasingly shifted from the family arena to the market Child care elder care care for the disabled and home care now account for a growing segment of low wage work in the United States and demand for such work will only increase as the baby boom generation ages But the expanding market provision of care has created new economic anxieties and raised pointed questions Why do women continue to do most care work both paid and unpaid Why does care work remain low paid when the quality of care is so highly valued How effective and equitable are public policies toward dependents in the United States In For Love and Money an interdisciplinary team of experts explores the theoretical dilemmas of care provision and provides an unprecedented empirical overview of the looming problems for the care sector in the United States Drawing on diverse disciplines and areas of expertise For Love and Money develops an innovative framework to analyze existing care policies and suggest potential directions for care policy and future research Contributors Paula England Nancy Folbre and Carrie Leana explore the range of motivations for caregiving such as familial responsibility or limited job prospects and why both love and money can be efficient motivators They also examine why women tend to specialize in the provision of care citing factors like job discrimination social pressure or the personal motivation to provide care reported by many women Suzanne Bianchi Nancy Folbre and Douglas Wolf estimate how much unpaid care is being provided in the United States and show that low income families rely more on unpaid family members for their child and for elder care than do affluent families With low wages and little savings these families often find it difficult to provide care and earn enough money to stay afloat Candace Howes Carrie Leana and Kristin Smith investigate the dynamics within the paid care sector and find problematic wages and working conditions including high turnover inadequate training and a pay penalty for workers who enter care jobs These conditions have consequences poor job quality in child care and adult care also leads to poor care quality In their chapters Janet Gornick Candace Howes and Laura Braslow provide a systematic inventory of public policies that directly shape the provision of care for children or for adults who need personal assistance such as family leave child care tax credits and Medicaid funded long term care They conclude that income and variations in states policies are the greatest factors determining how well and for whom the current system works Despite the demand for care work very little public policy attention has been devoted to it Only three states for example have enacted paid family leave programs Paid or unpaid care costs those who provide it At the heart of For Love and Money is the understanding that the quality of care work in the United States matters not only for those who receive care but also for society at large which benefits from the nurturance and maintenance of human capabilities As care work gravitates from the family to the formal economy this volume clarifies the pressing need for America to fundamentally rethink its care policies and increase public investment in this increasingly crucial sector
